Give Up Berlin, Wallace Says

New Party Nominates Ex-Iowan

Marcantonio Hits Indictments

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia —(AP)— Henry A. Wallace got formally into the 1948 presidential race Saturday with a call for America to march its troops out of Berlin.

In an acceptance speech taking his Progressive party's nomination, he said this country has nothing to lose by giving up Berlin "in a search for peace."

He said:

"If I were president, there would be no crisis in Berlin today."

Before he came to this big baseball yard with it's 35,000 seats nearly filled, his supporters called approvingly when Rep. Vito Marcantonio of New York said the government is trying to "destroy us by intimidation and by the indictment of communist leaders."

"I call on my fellow members of the Progressive party," Marcantonio stormed, "to join with all believers in democracy and freedom and go to Washington Aug. 5 to protest to President Truman and the justice department against the indictments of communists."

See story on Page 2 for details of the Progressive party's platform.

Paul Robeson, the Negro singer and actor, followed through with a similar appeal to join the on-to-Washington march to combat the "hysteria" he said the administration is whipping up.

Communist leaders were indicted earlier this week on charges of advocating violent overthrow of the government.

'SEARCH FOR PEACE'

Twice Wallace said in his prepared address of acceptance that there would be no Berlin crisis if he were in the White House.

And he invited America to march the troops out of Berlin. Thus "giving it up militarily in a search for peace."

"I am committed," Wallace said "to peaceful negotiations with the Soviet government. "The American people want and deserve fewer red issues and more red meat."

It was to frenzied cries for peace, on a platform of peace through dickering with Russia, that Wallace was nominated unanimously for the presidency by zealous third party followers.

By his side, the party convention placed Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho as the vice presidential candidate.

That was at a long, roaring session in convention hall at which delegates didn't let their enthusiasm sag for a minute.

They whistled and whooped and sang and stampeded through the aisles with banners aloft. Or they hooted or hissed or booed. It depended in which direction the orators and nominators thundered.

PERMANENT PARTY

They adopted a constitution to make the party permanent, with a national committee and plans for annual conventions.

They received, for formal approval today, a platform that says in 7,000 words what their party stands for and promises.

And through all the speeches and action and documents ran one main theme: The cause of peace, Wallace is the great crusader for peace.

Then last night, the convention shifted out doors, to the Philadelphia baseball park, for Wallace and Taylor to deliver their acceptance addresses.

"A new frontier awaits us," Wallace said in the text he wrote out in advance. "No longer west to the Pacific—but forward across the wilderness of poverty, and sickness and fear.

Flooded Lancaster Returns to Normal

LANCASTER — (AP) — Living returned to normal here today after Thursday's flash flood menaced 2,000 families. Utility services had been restored.

The Red Cross still sheltered about 20 families in the Sherman Armory in downtown Lancaster. Flood damage was estimated by authorities at more than $2,000,000.

'Cissy' Patterson Is Dead

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Death wrote "30" Saturday to the career of Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald.

She was found dead at her home in nearby Marlboro, Md., apparently having been stricken while reading.

The lights were still on in her room when her maid, Eva Borowik, went to her bedroom about noon today to deliver a message from one of the Times-Herald editors.

Mrs. Patterson, widely known as "Cissy," had suffered a heart attack about two years ago. She spent three months recuperating, then resumed active newspaper work.

Sixty-three years of age, she was the daughter of Elinor Medill and Robert Wilson Patterson. She was the granddaughter of Joseph Medill, founder of the Chicago Tribune.

McCORMICK'S COUSIN

The late Joseph Medill Patterson, founder and publisher of the New York Daily News, was her brother. Col. Robert McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, is her cousin.

Col. McCormick, traveling in Europe, said at Paris Saturday Mrs. Patterson's death was a "terrible blow."

Mrs. Patterson had had a tempestuous life before she entered the Washington newspaper field in the 1930s.

She was married at the age of 19 to Count Joseph Gizycki, a Polish cavalry officer. She left Poland three years later, taking with her a young daughter, Felicia.

CHILD ABDUCTED

The Count followed her to England and abducted the child.

Presidential intervention was necessary before the mother regained her child and came back to New York in 1908.

She was divorced from the count finally in 1917.

She was married again in 1925 to Elmer Schlesinger, an attorney of New York. He died four years later.

In 1930, having legally taken the name of Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, she began to take an active hand in Washington journalism.

She persuaded William Randolph Hearst, to let her edit his Washington Herald. She subsequently acquired both the Herald and the Washington Times, combining them into the Times-Herald.

As editor-publisher she kept in close touch with operations of her papers. She surprised no one when she appeared at any hour to direct the insertion or elimination or news stories just as an edition was going to press. Her "30," the newspaper signal for end, more than once was the last to go into the paper she edited.

She was as likely to sweep into the building clad in riding habit or evening clothes.

Count Backs Peace Plan

JERUSALEM — (AP) — Count Folke Bernadotte's plan for the demilitarization of Jerusalem was brought to the Holy City Saturday by one of the mediator's assistants. It was turned over to the three-national consular truce commission which will be charged with making it work.

Details of the plan were not made public but it was believed to call for the disarming of both Arabs and Jews in virtually the whole of the international enclave of Jerusalem as set forth in the United Nations partition plan.

The truce commission, composed of representatives of the U. S., France and Belgium, has been given the job of implementing the demilitarizatioon scheme and planning the future government of the holy city.

Meanwhile, the U.N. began moving back into Jerusalem. The pale blue U.N. flag went back up over Jerusalem's King David hotel in a brief ceremony in which Jewish authorities urged the mediators to "bring peace to our country."

Hold Atomic Superiority, Truman Says

President Hits Red Block on Controls

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman said today that he has ordered every effort to keep the country's "leading position" in the atomic field.

He further said that recent tests on Eniwetok atoll in the far Pacific "demonstrated beyond any question that our position in the field of atomic weapons has been substantially improved."

At the same time, Mr. Truman said that he had not given up hope of eventual, workable, international control, under which military use of the A-bomb could be prevented.

Russia, he said, is the stumbling block to progress toward such control.

'KEEP SECRETS'

And pending world control, "we cannot as a nation afford to disclose the secrets which make this new force the most deadly form of military weapon."

The President's remarks were contained in a statement in connection with the fourth semi-annual report of the Atomic Energy Commission to Congress.

"Our government has sought," Mr. Truman said, "through its representatives on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, to find a common basis for understanding with the other member nations. However, the uncompromising refusal of the Soviet Union to participate in a workable control system has thus far obstructed progress."

Stressing that he favors civilian control of our atomic energy program as provided in the Atomic Energy Act, Mr. Truman said:

"As President of the United States, I regard the continued control of all aspects of the Atomic Energy program, including research, development and the custody of atomic weapons, as the proper functions of the civil authorities."

Rebel Dems Form Party

Southerners Plan Presidential Slate

ATLANTA—(AP)—The issue of states' rights Saturday drove some angry southern Democrats to form a fourth party. They will try to enter a presidential slate in all states.

Candidates of the party, officially named "The States' Rights Democrats" are Gov. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina for president, and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi for vice president.

Precisely how the party intends to go about obtaining places on the November general election ballots in the 48 states was not disclosed.

Immediately after the decision by the steering committee, named after the July 17 states' rights convention at Birmingham, Thurmond said, "we are running for president and expect to be elected."

He emphasized that "we are not running on white supremacy, racial hatred or class prejudice. We are running primarily on the issue of states' rights."

The 46-year-old South Carolinian said other problems, domestic and foreign, would be met "at the proper time," adding that steps would be taken to set up a party organization immediately.

OSR Guard Thankful

'Time Hadn't Come,' Intended Victim Says

With a simple statement, "my time just hadn't come," Willis Harris, guard at Ohio State Reformatory, dismissed yesterday inquiries regarding killer Robert Daniels' assertion that he intended to slay Harris and killed three members of the John Elmer Niebel family instead when he couldn't find "Red" Harris.

"I'm alive today only because my time hadn't come," Harris said when interviewed in the horse barn at the reformatory.

"I was at home in bed Tuesday night when the Niebels were kidnaped and killed." "I don't know why Daniels didn't carry out his attempt if it was me he wanted to kill. Nor do I know why he would want to get me. I didn't know either Daniels or John West."

Then, a bit reflectively, he added: "We all have our time to go. And my time just hadn't come, that's all."

Daniels was captured, cowering and whimpering, at a police roadblock near Van Wert Friday. His companion in crime, West, was fatally shot.

Harris said neither of the former inmates worked under him.

"They worked at the hog barn under Stanley Kieffer," Harris asserted.

CAN'T UNDERSTAND

"Did you ever hear of any extra discipliniary measures meted out to the two?" he was asked.

Harris shook his head emphatically. "Never! I haven't any idea why they could want to kill Niebel."

Asked if he had any theories as to why Niebel had let the two into the house late at night, Harris answered:

"Well, Niebel had been a sick man. He had high blood pressure and an enlarged heart and there were times when he could scarcely walk. He might not have been himself."

Harris had no theory either as to why Niebel didn't make some outcry or some attempt to attract attention if, as Daniels said, they drove around Central park on their way to the cornfield.

"I don't know."

"Could he have had a heart attack or become ill?"

"He might have," Harris admitted. "He couldn't stand any excitement."

'I'd Kill Harris,' Daniels Asserts

CELINA—(AP)—Killer Robert Murl Daniels stood at the bars of his Mercer county jail cell Saturday and said coldly that if he ever got the chance he'd "get Red Harris yet."

Daniels, unshaven but wearing neatly pressed slacks, asserted Harris "beat hell out of me once" and that he had planned for four years to "get him."

"If it wasn't for Red Harris I wouldn't be here now. I got a lot of Irish in me and when somebody does something to me I get him back. I'm not kill-crazy but I'll tell you one thing —if I met Harris yet. I'd kill him."

City Spending $263,000 To Improve Streets

The city's $263,000 street improvement program for 1948 is moving into high gear. Workman have completed resurfacing operations on East Second street, between South Main street and Hedges street and on South Adams street, between Park avenue east and First street.

Resurfacing of Orange street is being held up for a settlement of the question of whether the county or the city is responsible for repair of the Orange street bridge.

The county engineer has informed the city council that the county is not bound legally to repair the bridge. City Solicitor C. J. Kalbfleisch is currently examining the situation to determine the city's point of view.

Meanwhile, workmen are grading and constructing curbs and gutters on Wood street, between Cline and Glessner avenues preparatory to the pouring of concrete.

CONCRETE POURED

Actual concrete pouring operations are underway on Abbeyfeale and Saxton roads, paving jobs that were held over from last year's street improvement program.

Poplar street, between Ohio street and Sloane avenue is being graded preparatory to paving as is Overlook road, between Davis and Crescent roads.

And city workmen are rushing to complete floor-laying operations on the Mulberry street viaduct. When completed, a five-inch layer of asphalt will cover the treated wood and the bridge will be opened for traffic.

Street Supt. E. W. Davis said he expected the work to be completed within 10 days.

Other streets on the street improvement program will be paved as equipment is made available for the work. All the work is being done by the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company.

Ex-Governor Leading Pack

DALLAS — (AP) — Former Governor Coke Stevenson went ahead for the U. S. Senatorial nomination early last night in the Texas first Democratic primary election.

The Texas election bureau's 7:30 p. m. (CST) tabulation from 15 counties, none complete, gave Stevenson 8,716 votes; George Peddy, Houston attorney, 8,513, and Rep. Lyndon Johnson 5,877.

Governor Beauford Jester, seeking re-election, took a heavy lead in the Governor's race with 15,878 votes over Roger Q. Evans of Denison, who had 6,554, and Caso March of Waco, who had polled 2,160.

The returns included a large batch of votes from Harris county, home of Peddy. Other candidates in both the Senate and Governor's races polled a scattering of votes

Stevenson is 60 years old. Peddy is 55 and Johnson, who gave up his congressional seat to run, is 39.

'Flying Disc' Time Again?

Pilots Spot Huge Wingless Airplane

ATLANTA — (AP) — Two Eastern Airline pilots said they met a wingless two deck plane early today southwest of Montgomery, Ala. They said the strange ship shooting red flames and with a blue glow underneath the fuselage, passed the EAL ship at 5,000 feet headed toward New Orleans.

The pilots said the stranger looked like a "Buck Rogers rocket ship."

The two pilots — Captain C. S. Childs and Co-Pilot J. B. Whitted — were flying the Houston-to-Atlanta-To - Boston run. They left Houston, Texas, at 8:30 p. m. (CST) last night. This morning at 2:45 o'clock, 20 miles southwest of Montgomery, they sighted the strange ship.

"It was in line almost with our flight," Capt. Childs said. "We veered off to the left and this object turned to its left. When it came nearer to us, within better sight, its fuselage appeared to be about 100 feet in length and about four times circumference of a B-29 fuselage.

"It had two rows of windows, an upper and a lower. They were square. Out of the rear of the ship red flames were shooting 25 to 50 feet. There was a blue glow underneath the fuselage. The ship appeared to be doing between 500 and 700 miles an hour, heading toward New Orleans.

"When it got along side of us it pulled up with a tremendous burst of flame out of the rear. The flames were so bright they blinded us for a second. Then the ship disappeared into the broken clouds. The ship had no wings. It seemed to have an upper deck and a lower deck and was fully lighted inside. We saw no occupants.

Both pilots live in Atlanta and both served in the Army Air Corps as fighter pilots during the war. Childs, a native of Knoxville, Tenn., has been with Eastern nine years. Whitted, from Durham, N. C., has been with Eastern two years.

At Montgomery, Maxwell and Dannelly Army fields said they knew nothing about the report.

Medina Man Named New Farm Agent

Succeeds Ganyard In Extension Office

Chester N. McGrew of Medina will be Richland county's next farm extension agent. He will succeed George B. Ganyard on Sept. 1 when Ganyard goes to Franklin county (Columbus) as agent.

McGrew comes to Richland county with a lifelong experience and practical and theoretical training in agriculture. A former 4-H club member from Portage county, he was graduated from Ohio State university's college of agriculture and became Medina county 4-H club agent in 1939.

He then served four and one-half years in military service, following which he became associate extension agent of Medina county.

McGrew visited Mansfield Friday night. At that time O. C. Croy, supervisor of extension for Northeast Ohio, presented McGrew to the Richland county rural leaders' committee at a meeting in the Court of Appeals room.

Croy explained that McGrew's appointment was subject to formal action by the board of trustees of Ohio State university.

PHONE INTERVIEW

In a telephone interview Saturday with the News-Journal McGrew said he would make no statements about his plans for his new job until he is sure he can live up to them.

"The policy of a county extension agent is pretty uniform, I don't expect to make any changes," he said.

McGrew learned early about farming and the problems that farmers face. He was born and reared on a 112-day dairy farm in Portage county near Kent.

In November 1941 his career was interrupted when he entered the army the month before Pearl Harbor. He served overseas from July 1944 to March 1946. In June 1946 he was discharged and re-

U.S. Expands Aerial Bases

German Airdromes Prepare for Jets

BERLIN —(AP)— The Americans and British are swiftly expanding air bases in western Germany to handle combat planes while their diplomats seek a peaceful solution to the Berlin crisis.

An Associated Press survey showed Saturday that airdromes in the west are being enlarged for huge bombers and jet-propelled fighters as well as swarms of airlift transports.

The transports, flying more and more supplies to Soviet-blockaded Berlin, will gain time for the western power negotiations with Russia. The bombers and fighters apparently will be ready in case negotiations break down to the point of war.

Some of the airfield expansion projects were forced by the aerial supply of Berlin but others are clearly designed for use by giant B-29 Superfortresses and "Shooting Star" jet fighters.

Thirty Superfortresses already are in Germany and 60 more recently arrived in England. A total of 100 jets are en route to Germany, 16 flown across the Atlantic to England last week and 84 others being shipped by sea.

Runways are being lengthened, widened or otherwise improved at Wiesbaden, Fuerstenfeldbruck, Neubiberg and Kaufburen and an entire new landing field will be built by the Americans in Berlin.

Inside the iron curtain, meanwhile, the Russians went ahead with moves to undermine the western power tenure in Berlin.

Taking note of Russian offers to feed and supply power to western Berlin, Maj. Gen. E. O. Herbert, British commandant, said the Soviets were using their hunger blockade to force a communist economic dictatorship on the city.

B-29's on Way

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Three B-29 Superfortresses have been delayed in the Azores on their world-circling flight but took off last night for Tripoli, the strategic air command announced. The announcement said the delay was caused by mechanical trouble in one of the planes.

Daniels-West Killings Bring Bid for Curb

An Ohio, aroused to calm, sober anger by the 14-day orgy of crime that cost the lives of six innocent persons, moved Saturday to guard against again permitting parolees from its penal institutions from re-enacting such a bloodlust series of crimes.

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert took the lead in a statewide effort to tighten official supervision over mentally deficient and kill-crazed inmates once they are released from custody.

Perturbed by the crime career of Robert Daniels, 22, and his dead companion in crime, John C. West, 24, Gov. Herbert yesterday ordered the state's parole chiefs to meet with him Monday at 11 a. m. in Columbus to discuss "supervision of paroled prisoners."

Summoned to the conference were Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, three state pardon and parole commission members, Lawrence C. Hackenberg, Percy R. Lowery and Chairman Raymond A. Younger and G. R. Klopfenstein, chief of the bureau of probation and parole.

A spokesman for the governor's office said there was nothing in the prison records of either West or Daniels to lead phychologists to believe that they might turn to a career of violence following their releases.

He cited a report made by Younger which showed that 85 per cent of all paroled convicts stay out of trouble after their release, 7½ per cent are returned to the institutions as parole violators, and 7½ per cent are found guilty of new crimes.

Meanwhile, the question of where Daniels would be tried remained unanswered. Richland county's prosecutor, Theodore Lutz, filed Saturday with the sheriff of Van Wert county, Roy Shaffer, three warrants charging Daniels with first degree murder in the deaths of John Elmer Niebel, 50; his wife, Nolanda, 51, and their daughter, Phyllis, 20.

"We won't return Daniels tonight (Saturday)," Lutz informed The News-Journal when reached late yesterday at Celina, where he awaited an opportunity to talk again with Daniels. Daniels was moved from Van Wert to the more modern jail at Celina Friday night.

"It probably will be the middle of next week before we'll know where Daniels will be tried," Lutz added. "The condition of Van Wert Policeman L. D. Conn still is dangerous." Conn was shot by West as he and Sheriff Shaffer stopped the auto transport in which they were riding.

"If Conn dies, you well can understand why Van Wert would want to keep him.

"But if Conn lives, I firmly believe Daniels should be tried in Mansfield.

EXAMPLE TO INMATES

"After all, he killed a state officer of the reformatory there, and he should be punished for that if for no other reason, as an example to the other 2,200 prisoners at the reformatory who might think they also could get away with attempts to intimidate."

Lutz was high in praise of Sheriff Shaffer's handling of the difficult situation arising from the fact that three Ohio counties all wanted Daniels on murder charges.

"We have been treated very fairly," he commented. "The Van Wert county officers have been most kind and considerate."

Franklin county (Columbus) wants Daniels for the killing on July 10 of Earl C. Ambrose, tavern operator. Seneca county (Tiffin) wants him for the murder of James Smith, 25, a farmer, whose wife spread the alarm that led to the setting up of statewide road blocks that resulted in capture of Daniels, and for the later killing near Tiffin of Orville Taylor, Niles, Mich., driver o fthe transport Daniels and We were using in their escape attempt.

Lutz disclosed that Daniels,

Ball Team Decimated

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(AP)—A head-on highway crash and ensuing fire today killed five men, four of them members of the Duluth club of the Northern baseball league. Fourteen other team members were injured, seven critically.

The baseball players were riding in a Duluth team bus piloted by the club manager when it and a dry ice truck collided on a rise in highway 36 on the north edge of St. Paul city limits shortly before noon.

The bus hurled onto its side in the ditch, burst into flame, its gasoline tank ruptured.

Authorities credited passersby with saving the lives of at least 10 of the ball players by pulling them from the wreckage. Several were unconscious. All but three of the bus's 18 occupants were out of the vehicle when intense heat drove the rescuers away.

DEATH LIST

The Ramsey county morgue gave out the following death list:

George Treadwell, 42, Superior, Wis., manager of the team.

James E. Grealish, St. Paul, driver of the truck.

Gerald (Peanuts) Peterson, Proctor, Minn., outfielder.

Donald Schuchman, St. Louis, pitcher.

The injured included Donald Gilmore, Columbus, Ohio, pitcher, condition critical; Elmer Schoendienst, 22, Germantown, Ill., third baseman, bruised. Schoendienst is a brother of Red Schoendienst, second baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Several of those in critical condition inhaled flames before they were rescued, Dr. C. A. Ingerson, Ramsey county coroner, said.

Plans Meal In Between Ocean Swim

NOTTINGHAM, Eng. — (AP) — Tom Blower proposes to swim across the English channel twice next week—with just a square meal in between. He starts on Thursday.

Blower is 34, weighs 252 pounds and swims like a battleship.

He asked the Amateur Swimming Association about the rules —how long can he stay in France and still call it a double, nonstop crossing?

The association was stumped. It said there are no known rules, but observed: "A man attempting such a feat should not be trammeled by regulations."

So Blower said he will stay in France fifteen minutes.

"Long enough to have a good meal cooked by Mrs. Blower," he said, "and they can regrease me while I'm eating it."

Polio Peak Unsighted

RALEIGH, N. C. —(AP)— The most severe epidemic of polio in North Carolina's history continued toward an unsighted peak Saturday.

The state board of health reported 30 cases, bringing the year's total to 885. The record heretofore was 878 set in 1944.

A preliminary survey of county boards of health attributes 51 deaths to the disease.

Sixteen counties reported cases today including Polk which recorded its first. Guilford, apparently the center of the epidemic, reported eight cases bringing the total to 133.

Area Demand for Electricity Paves Way for Big Plants

Farms Ride Boom Wave On Power

Shelby, Galion Expand Works

By IRVING LEIBOWITZ

Extension of electricity to rural communities is giving Mansfield area farmers their highest living standard in history and is paving the way for giant-size municipal-owned power plants in Shelby and Galion.

By doing work cheaper than hired hands can do it, and by increasing output, electricity is providing a greater margin of profit on many farm operations.

However, the increasing demand for electrical power from industries, homes and farms is creating a serious problem with present power and light plants in the area which are unable to provide the necessary output.

Wide-awake Shelby and Galion have done something to alleviate the problem. Last week Shelby's city council voted unanimously to purchase a new turbine engine to give the municipal plant additional output capacity.

Galion's city council, meanwhile, adopted a program to "expand, preserve and perpetuate" the municipal light and power plant.

The problem was heightened after the war when a mild industrial growth took place and farmers became more power-conscious. Today the farmer is buying more feed grinders, pressure water systems, cream separators, milk coolers, storage freezing units, milking machines and other sweat-saving equipment dear to his heart.

John F. Porter, director of public service and safety in Galion, underscored the benfits of electricity to farmers in his report to the city council last week.

Porter pointed out that "farmers have learned what electric motors can do for less than five cents worth of electricity." For these few pennies, he said, electricity will shell from 20 to 30 bushels of corn, milk ten to 20 cows, pump 1,000 gallons of water, mix two tons of feed, churn 100 pounds of butter, or elevate 500 bushels of grain."

More than 17 industries in Galion are working on expansion plans. The industrial situation is the same in surrounding areas—more machines and buildings for the future.

Heads up engineers in the Mansfield area have noted the trend of expansion and have reported to city power officials that "in order to keep abreast of power demands in the future we have to expand, too."

Both Galion and Shelby's municipally-owned plants have already experienced trouble because their plants' capacity was inadequate. Industries were forced to close down for two weeks in Galion recently while engineers repaired a boiler. Shelby, with chances for more industries, was unable to provide the necessary power.

Service-Safety Director Porter also emphasized the advantages of a municipally-owned plant. There are many savings for communities, he said. "There is no cost for street lights, or for power in any city building."

With area power companies keeping in step with the increased demand for electric light and power for domestic, commercial and industrial purposes, farmers, in particular, are exulting.

For Mansfield area's corn and wheat farmers, riding a wave of high prices and bumper crops, the rural electrical age is providing a new prosperity boom.

Seek Ouster Of Resort City Mayor

RUSSELL'S POINT—A movement to oust Mayor Roy Howell is underway in this resort city.

A petition is being circulated to ask the Logan county Common Pleas court to remove Mayor Howell because of his alleged failure to enforce the gambling laws.

There are about 50 slot machines in the three-block business section of this Indian Lake summer resort. There are about 500 slots in various other communities around the lake.

In June three of the five city council members passed a resolution demanding action from Mayor Howell against commercial gambling. They were Floyd C. Sebring, Dewey D. Harris and Charles Nercaw.

Form Eagles Aerie Today

Crabbs Heads New London Unit

NEW LONDON — The institution of a new aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles will take place today at 3 p. m.

Charles Crabbs will head the new aerie as president.

John A. Fields, organizer in charge of circulating a charter here, announced yesterday that he had received word from national headquarters in Kansas city, Mo., approving plans for institution.

Applications for the new charter class were taken all week and may even be taken this morning, Fields disclosed.

Local members will be initiated by the Willard degree team. Visitors from all neighboring cities where aeries of Eagles are located. The New London aeria has been named Firelands.

Other officers include Oren Barker, past president; Royce Jennings, vice-president; Marlin Fleming, chaplain; Lotus Briggs, secretary; O. K. Bach, treasurer; Francis Azchilman, conductor; Park Doyler, inside guard; Herchel Davis, outside guard; and trustees Clayton Hess, Raymond Wert and John Churolla.

Vets Confer With Taylor

A group of Youngstown World War II veterans will meet Wednesday with Maurice W. Taylor, general secretary Mansfield YMCA, for advice on a housing program they are sponsoring in their city.

Taylor last year headed a similar project of 127 homes for the Frank Durwin Post 138 of the American Legion in Hamilton.

The Hamilton project has attracted national and state recognition because of the high quality, conventionally constructed homes, provided at a low cost to the veterans.

PLAN EXPANSION OF GALION POWER PLANT—Galion's Municipal Light and Power company will be expanded under a plan designed to "preserve and perpetuate" the plant facilities. A breakdown in one boiler of the plant (pictured above) caused a curtailment of power for two weeks over the Fourth of July holiday. Worship 'Under the Stars' In Ashland

Third Open-Air Service Tonight

ASHLAND — Traditional open-air worship services tonight at city park will mark the third joint observance by Methodist churches this summer.

The union worship gatherings, held under the auspices of the Ashland Ministerial association, are increasing in popularity.

Eight churches cooperate in promoting the custom of worship "under the stars." These are: First Presbyterian church, First Evangelican United Brethren church, Peace Lutheran church, First Methodist church, Trinity Lutheran church, First Christian church, First Church of the Brethren, the Salvation Army, and the YMCA.

HOLD OTHER SERVICES

Several churches affiliated with the Ministerial association, however, intend to continue their own Sunday evening services.

Open-air services in Ashland originated during the summer of 1948. Many churches held united forms of worship much earlier. During the Thanksgiving and Good Friday observances local churches have almost always held united rites.

Rev. J. C. Inman of the First church of the Brethren, will be the principal speaker. He took over the reins of the open-air services when he was named secretary last year, succeeding Dr. H. E. Andrews, who had held the post since the organization's inception.

Highlight of the sessions are musical programs, sermons and occasionally religious motion pictures.

Pastors who belong to the Ashland Ministerial association are: Dr. H. E. Andrews, Rev. Paul M. Frees of the First Evangelical United Brethren church, Rev. C. E. Applegath of the First Methodist church, Dr. H. H. Lentz of Trinity Lutheran church, Rev. H. H. Rowsey of the Park Street Brethren church, Rev. G. Arnold Clymer of Emmanuel E.U.B. church, Rev. James Dixon of the West Tenth Street Brethren church, Rev. Robert Andrews of the Church of the Nazarene, Rev. Walter Koepplin of Peace Lutheran church, Rev. J. C. Inman, Rev. J. N. Shelby Has Lightest Relief Roll In Area

By JOHN PATRICK, N-J State Correspondent

SHELBY—The healthy economic condition of Shelby is reflected by the light relief roll here.

Today, this community of nearly 9,000 inhabitants has only nine relief cases. Five of them are hospitalized and the others are members of an indigent family whose head is not capable of working.

For the month of June, only three persons were carried as relief cases.

Compared to neighboring towns, Shelby's expenditures for relief, including medical and administration costs, are extremely small. Last year, Shelby was required to spend less than $2,600 for relief while Galion put out $11,346 and Bucyrus more than $31,860. Welfare officials believe Shelby has the lightest relief roll in the area.

Charles Monn, volunteer director of relief here, said that Shelby will probably spend less money for relief this year than in previous years.

EMPLOYMENT REPORT

Another barometer that indicates Shelby's healthy economic condition is a report by R. I. Lewis, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service office here. The report, in part, shows that "there are 15 active claimants for unemployment compensation, including six veterans and a number of others home from college who are entitled to benefits."

The report also stated that "there are good job openings in Shelby which the local office can't fill."

Expansions among the city's larger industries indicates that Shelby may have to import labor in the future.

Navy Training Station Taxed

The Mansfield U. S. Navy recruiting station received notice Saturday that the Navy training center at Great Lakes is over crowded.

The station received orders permitting them to accept applications for enlistment but not to send any new enlistments to the center with the exception of the Mansfield quota of three 18 year old men for 12 months service.

LESS FUEL THIS WINTER ?
YOU CAN BE COMFORTABLE ANYWAY!

NOW'S THE TIME TO INSTALL
MASONITE* CELL-U-BLANKET

Even if heating fuels should be a little harder to get this winter, you can keep your home comfortable—by merely nailing or stapling Masonite Cell-U-Blanket insulation to roof rafters or ceiling joists.

This, the latest word in home insulation, comes in rolls and convenient lengths, and is semi-rigid yet light in weight. Easy to apply.

Yet for all its easy handling, Cell-U-Blanket is unusually efficient. Wind-proof. Water-proofed. It provides a positive vapor barrier. It is permanent and will not shrink, sag or settle. Prevents high heat losses. Makes your whole house snug, warm and comfortable.

Stop in and let us show you Cell-U-Blanket and give you full information.

Vacations Again Blast Softball Sked

NEW ANGLE—Making it easier for the fisherman, Arnold Riede of Dubuque, Ia., has invented a fish pole holder which may be used either in fishing from the bank of a stream or while in a boat. It is made of aluminum castings and is light in weight and salt resisting. Riede shows how it works in this photo.

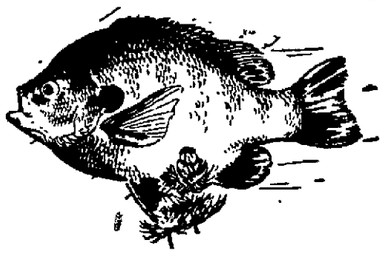
OUTDOORS

With

Mal Hartley

For the benefit of those who are following the weekly fishing advice, here is an illustration of the finny fellows they are likely to hook. The conservation division's report, published Friday in The News-Journal, rated Charles Mill reservoir as tops, and indicated bluegills are the most likely victims.

This drawing shows the bluegill, a sunfish which is found especially in Mississippi and Ohio river valley areas. Bluegills are found all over Ohio, and offer good sport when taken on a fly-rod.



Bluegills have tiny mouths, and are best caught on small size No. 10 hooks. They can be caught with bait, and seem to be lacking in wariness, although this does not apply to the bigger ones.

Local fishermen who have reported on their success at Charles Mill agree there isn't much chance to catch bass there. But that does not mean it is an impossibility.

The reservoir has one sterling virtue. It's close home. For the one-day fishermen who can't take the time for long tours, that means a great deal.

It Happens All the Time

It seems that nearly all fishermen haye the firm conviction that fishing is always better somewhere else. Pleasant Hill and Charles Mill reservoirs are just too close for those who are certain the greener pastures are far away.

The situation is well illustrated by an incident reported through the Conservation division. It seems that a party of anglers from Defiance, Ohio, recently motored into a neighboring state for a day of good fishing.

Stopping a native of the fishing area which had been recommended, the leader of the party asked for directions to the good fishing water nearby.

The good neighbor studied a moment and answered, "Well, don't know much about the waters hereabouts, but if you don't mind driving a couple hundred miles or so I'll tell you where us folks up around here do most of our fishing."

"We don't mind the drive," the Ohioans pointed out, "where is it?"

To which the native answered: "Down around Defiance, Ohio."

★

Notes in Brief

Joseph Fichter, state Grange master, failed to receive confirmation by the Ohio Senate's rules committee to serve as a member of the Ohio Conservation commission.

★

The Brotherhood of the Jungle Cock, a national organization of fishermen, whose primary objective is to teach outdoor sportsmanship to young boys of the nation by taking a boy a-fishing, will come to Ohio for its annual campfire ceremony on July 31 at Lake Marion near Steubenville.

Soil Erosion

The top issue in fundamental conservation practices has centered in prevention of soil erosion. Even sportsmen—or it might be said particularly sportsmen—have come to the realization that hunting, fishing and outdoor recreation are all dependent on the welfare of the land, waters and forestry.

Agriculture's greatest asset is her top soil. Endless measures are used to fertilize and improve the land, only too often to lose it through the bunghole of erosion. The trick is to force the soil to stay put The "gully forces" are America's arch enemies today as for year past.

Mal's Mutters . . .

Near my old stomping grounds on the Ohio river, there's a spot where George Washington is supposed to have camped for the night. An unconfirmed tale relates that the nation's Pop skidded on the river bank mud and plopped. Some of the enterprising natives now want to erect a marker on the Pop plup spot reading: "George Washington Slipped Here."

This one is circulating among the Younger Set in Mansfield:

"Did you hear about the two fleas that saved up their money to buy their own dog?"

Facts You Needn't Know

An elephant's trunk contains 40,000 muscles. (Gosh, how does he ever get the lid shut)

A bee travels 550 miles to make a teaspoonful of honey. (Sweats for the sweets, doesn't it?)

Ancestors of our present-day goldfish were green in color. (That must be right During the fad of a decade ago, college boys would eat a raw gold-fish and then turn green.)

Woodman Casting Is Tops In Weekly Skish Competition

K. L. Woodman topped Marty Pahls, two week winner, and a field of capable competitors to win the regular skish contest held every Friday evening at Liberty Park lake.

Woodman dropped his 5/8 ounce plug in the center of the 30 inch circles placed at 30 to 80 feet intervals, five times. His other five casts were close giving him a final score of 91 out of a possible 100.

Mrs. Martin Pahls carried the family honors with 84 points and second place in the Adult competition. H. W Fox a close third with 83. Heads winds kept all scores low.

In the junior competition, Myron Delaney took first place with a 65 score. Chairman Earl Horning announced that anyone interested in casting is invited to attend the contests which are jointly sponsored by the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association and the Mansfield Casting club.

3 Outfits Remain As Undefeated

For the second straight week vacations have taken a heavy bite out of Mansfield's softball league schedule.

Only 13 conflicts are on the week's slate and the district tournament which starts Tuesday may cause postponement of more contests. The leagues will resume full-time operation the week of Aug. 2 and then hit a slack period during "amateur week" which begins Aug. 9.

With the Ohio Brass girls "off" the perfect record list, but three league teams are still unbeaten. Farm Tools leads the group with nine wins in the Industrial circuit, Komito's Clothes has five in the Independent and Park Avenue Baptist six in the Church circuit.

A single night game is booked this week when Komito's battles Greystone Nite club at Gorman-Rupp field Tuesday at 8 p. m.

The schedule and umpire assignments follow:

MONDAY

PARK LEAGUE—Prospect at Johns, umpire, Walt Marshall; Gorman-Rupp juniors at North Lake, umpire Harry Socea.

TUESDAY

INDEPENDENT LEAGUE — Komito's Clothes vs. Greystone Nite club, Gorman-Rupp field, 8 p. m umpires, Conrad Neidhammer, plate and Bill Moody, bases.

GIRLS' LEAGUE—Lumbermens vs. Tappan Stove, Liberty park, umpire Sheldon Perrine.

WEDNESDAY

Twenty Hits Rip Senators

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A twenty hit assault put the St. Louis Browns on the long end of a 13-2 score yesterday against the Washington Senators.

Three Washington pitchers were unable to stem the tide. The Browns made a first inning triple play against the Senators.

With the bases loaded Tom McBride slashed a liner back at Pitcher Bill Kennedy. The ball caromed in the air to shortstop Ed Pellagrini, who threw to Bob Dillinger to catch Eddie Yost off third base. Dillinger's throw to Chuck Stevens caught Gil Coan off first base to complete the triple play.

Freddy Haas Shows Temper, Leads Golfers

READING, Pa. — (AP) — Temperamental Freddy Haas jr. complained about spectators and threw a bottle at a tree on the 14th hole, but he led the field in the $15,000 Reading Open yesterday with a 54 hole, 16 under par 200.

Rod Munday, York (Pa.) Country club pro, lost his magic touch in the third round and fell from a first place tie to a third place deadlock with South African Bobby Locke at 204.

Haas, New Orleans, La., pro, added a four under par 68 to his opening round 65 — record for the Berkshire Country club course —and his 67 of Friday.

WOMAN DOES IT

The 32-year-old pro had gallery trouble. Once a spectator stepped on his ball. Later he complained about women standing in back of him. On the 14th, when his tee shot went astray, he crashed a soft drink bottle against a tree.

Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C., fired a six-under-par 66 to wind up second with a 202 total.

Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., shot a 66 for a total 205. Also bracketed at 205 were Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif.; Pete Cooper, Ponte Verde, Fla., and defending champion E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Little Rock, Ark.

Early Phillies' Scores Win Game Over Reds, 7-5

CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Philadelphia Phillies scored seven runs in the first four innings and made them stand up yesterday as they clipped the Cincinnati Reds 7-5 before a crowd of 5,100.

Young Curt Simmons allowed the Reds only two hits over the first seven innings but weakened and was driven from the mound in a five-run eighth inning. Ken Heintzelman and Ed Heusser finished for the Phillies and saved the victory for Simmons, his fifth as against 10 defeats.

Philadelphia greeted starter Johnny Vander Meer with three runs on four hits in the opening round and then sent him to the showers with two more counters in the second. Single markers in the third and fourth rounded out the Phillies' scoring.

Philadelphia	321	100	000	7	15	1

Simmons, Heintzelman (8), Heusser (8), Vander Meer, Blackburn (2), Cress (7), Gumbert (9) and Williams.

Three Junior Ball Outfits Undefeated

With Hot Stove league play well into the second round one team in each of the three loops still maintains its undefeated record.

Sons of Herman Colts in the Major, Police in the Junior and Prospect in the Elementary league have piled up a total of 25 victories without a single loss to mar their records.

Only Prospect, winners of twelve league starts, faces stiff competition this week. Prospect will meet Newman at 7:45 p. m. Thursday as part of a doubleheader. Newman, in second place with 10 victories and only one defeat, beat the Prospect team in a non-league game last week. The other half of Thursday's doubleheader will pair St. Peter's and Newman at 6:15.

★

Two trips to Cleveland ball games will be part of the week's Hot Stove program. Five elementary schools — Carpenter, Bowman, Grubaugh, Woodland and Prospect — will see the Indians-Athletics game Wednesday, while Saturday Newman of the Elementary and the Elks and Mitschs of the Junior league will be taken.

★

Baseball director Ed Chatlain also announced that all major league games will start at 5:45 p. m. instead of 6 beginning this week. The Hot Stove league bus will transport players to Liberty and Blue Goose parks each afternoon, leaving the Recreation department at 12:30 p. m.

Yankee Tryouts

HAMILTON —(AP)— The New York Yankees baseball club will hold a tryout camp here Aug. 12 and 13 at the North End Athletic Field. The tryout is intended primarily for high school graduates but club officials said any high school, college, amateur or semi-pro player, between the ages of 16 and 22, may attend.

G-R Meets Two Foes In League

With their league lead narrowed to a single game, Mansfield Gorman-Rupp will play two games this week in an attempt to stave off the stretch drive of Marion Smitty's Grill.

Gorman - Rupp will entertain Willard Elks, one of the two teams to defeat them in league play Monday under the local lights, and Friday will go to Tiffin Routh Packers.

Marion, meanwhile, is scheduled to be host to Tiffin Monday in its only outing.

Gorman-Rupp has won 12 league games and lost two while Marion has won the same number but dropped four. The North Central Ohio Inter-City league schedule calls for 20 games.

Willard, which comes here tomorrow, has been the biggest source of trouble to Manager Nick Weber's locals all year. The two teams played a 16-inning 1-1 tie early in the year and the Willards knocked Gorman-Rupp out 2-0 two week sago.

Toledo Host To 24th Ohio Open Tourney

TOLEDO — (AP) — One hundred and seventy five of the state's best amateur and professional golfers are scheduled to tee off in the 24th Ohio open championship at the Sylvania Country club Monday with the pros shooting for a $2,800 jackpot, the largest in the event's history.

Leading the professionals are Al Marchi, Columbus, the defending champion, Oak Willoweit, Dayton, 1947 runnerup, Herman Keister, the tournament star from Akron, and Toney Penna, the Cincinnati shotmaker.

AMATEUR ENTRANTS

Among the amateurs entered are Frank Stranahan, Toledo's British and Canadian amateur king; Val Chiaverini, the state public links title-holder; Ollie Kay, Toledo, who was a semi-finalist in the national public links tourney this week; Tommy Whiteway, Cleveland and Ed Meister, Willoughby, runnerup for the state title in 1937.

Other top professionals entered are Gene Kunes, a Cleveland driving range operator who had considerable success on the PGA tournament trail before the war and one of two men to win the New Jersey OPN and PGA title in the same year, 1947; and Phil Perkins, 1928 British amateur champ.

First place in the 72-hole event will be worth $1,000 to the professional, including $250 added by the host course.

Bartender Wins Publinx Crown

ATLANTA — (AP) — Mike Ferentz, the dimunitive bartender from Long Beach, Calif., laid three perfect stymies which Been Hughes of Portland, Ore., could not jump to win the 23rd national public links golf tournament, 2 and 1 yesterday.

Hughes, a 31-year-old accountant, was a threat to win the championship during the entire 36-hole final round at North Fulton park.

Newman Yankees Get Chicken Feed

The Newman Yankees, Hot Stove Elementary league team, were honored with a chicken supper last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Conrad.

Each of the youngsters were presented with a team photo. Manager Corky Perrine's Newman team has lost only one game. The club is sponsored by Liederkranz. Wanda Conrad and Mike Siwek assisted with arrangements for the party.

TEE TIME

By Charley Stine

(News-Journal Sports Writer)

Ohio best golfers, both professional and amateur, will tee off Monday morning at Toledo in the first round of the Ohio Open championship and at least two Mansfield men will be in the group.

Pro Tom Raklets and Amateur Dale Rose, both of Westbrook country club, are the only Mansfielders we know who submitted entry blanks. They both competed in the Open last year at Dayton but didn't fare so well.

Joe Mayer, the Cook road driving range pro, will sit out the Ohio Open. Entries were due in by July 21. Mayer had hoped to go to Toledo tomorrow and squeeze in to the meet. However, officials tell us that tee entries will not be taken, so Mayer is out.

★

The Ohio Open is only one in the series of tournaments which grace the Ohio golfing calendar the next few weeks. The Columbus District golf association, of which Westbrook Country club is a member, has a number of tournaments coming up while an industrial joust at Barberton may attract several local teams.

Lined up at Columbus are the District Amateur tournament, which runs tomorrow through next Sunday, the District Open, Aug. 16-17, and a team tournament for member clubs on Aug. 29. . . . Entries for the amateur are already closed but Westbrook members may still get in the District Open by writing Ralph Montgomery at the Scioto Country club, scene of the tournament.

Teams from Westinghouse and possibly several other companies are planning to enter the Mid-West Industrial tournament at the Sieberling Country club in Barberton.

The tournament will be staged over the Aug. 22-23 week-end with 18 holes being played Saturday afternoon and another 18 Sunday. Winner will be determined by the total medal score of the four team members. Trophies will be given to the three top teams and the three individual low medalists.

A team made up of Westinghouse golfers could present quite a classy array. Pro Joe Mayer would be supported by such outstanding linksmen as Ray Malaska, Berne Mathias, Red Dillon, Cid Mathias, Carl Kurek, Pete Zeides and several other "A" league golfers. Of course only four could play, but a choice made of any four of those mentioned would not be a mistake.

Tappan could present a fair team with the brilliant Al Hager leading the way. Hen Miller and several others would give Al ample support. Mansfield Tire also should be able to send a capable foursome.

★

Club managers, sports writers and sporting goods dealers who ordinarily can "expert" without being called on to prove their ability, will battle it out Aug. 2 in the annual Peddlers' Tournament. Irish McGee, Possum Run pro, has invited us to play with him in the joust, which is being held at the Willoughby course in Cleveland. We're a little dubious, however. Our golf is too much vocal "expert" and not enough ability.

Gorman-Rupp, Tools Good Tourney Bets

Gorman-Rupp and Farm Tools look to be Mansfield's best bets in the district softball tournament which opens this week in Bucyrus.

Nine Mansfield teams will be among the 21 in the tournament with Smitty's Grill of Marion and the Ashland Indians likely to rate favorites along with Gorman-Rupp and the Toolmen.

Three of the four co-favorites are members of the North Central Ohio Inter-City league while Farm Tools must be reckoned with because of its 24-2 record.

The girls' tournament opens festivities tomorrow night with the men taking over Monday. The schedule:

Monday — (Girls) Mt. Vernon Cochran-Dalrymple vs. Ashland, 8 p. m.; Marion Smitty's Maids vs. Galion All Steel.

Tuesday — Mansfield AVC vs. Marion W. and W. Provision, 7:15 p. m.; Mansfield Penn Auto vs. Bucyrus Lone Pine; Galion Perfection Steel vs. Mansfield Tappan Stove.

Wednesday — Mansfield Farm Tools vs. Crestline Eagles, 7:15 p. m.; Mansfield VFW vs. Upper Sandusky Budd's Sports; Ohio Sport Center vs. Baldridge Auto Service, Upper Sandusky.

Thursday — Shelby VFW vs. Ashland Garber Printers, 8 p. m.; Girls final between winners of Monday's games.

Monday, Aug. 2—Ashland Indians vs. winner Tuesday's game No. 1, 7:15 p. m.; Komito's Clothes vs. winner Tuesday's game No. 2; Gorman-Rupp vs. Mt. Gilead Weaver Market.

Tuesday, Aug. 3—Mansfield A. C. vs. winner of July 27 game No. 3; Bucyrus Lions vs. winner July 28 game No. 1; Marion Smitty's Grill vs. winner July 28 game No. 2.

Quarterfinals, semi-finals and finals will be played Aug. 4, 5, 9, and 11.

Biggest Field To Compete In 14th Olympics

From among these may come a new star of the first magnitude: Patton and Ewell, 100 and 200 meters; Whitfield, 400 and 800; Marcel Hansenne of France, 800 and 1,500; Emil Zatopek of Czechoslovakia, 5,000 and 10,000, and Lloyd LaBeach of Panama, 100 and 200.

Then there are possible world record smashers in single events like Lennart Strand of Sweden, 1,500 meters; Herb McKenley of Jamaica, 400, and Steele in the broad jump.

From an American standpoint the Olympic program starts out with a terrific rush and tapers off toward the end. Track, swimming, wrestling and basketball all go on simultaneously in scattered arenas at the outset.

Crew racing starts Aug. 5 on the Thames river. At the end of the games only basketball and boxing hold major attention.

CENTER OF SHOW

Wembley, which seats 83,000, is the center of the show. Scarcely two weeks ago the greyhounds were chased out and the smooth track of cinders and ground tiles was laid, gleaming brick red against the somber, low sloping stands.

Only mayor missing teams will be Japan and Germany, which were not invited because no governments exist, and Russia, which has not yet joined the international Olympic committee and set up amateur standards.

The Olympic sports are: track and field, swimming, wrestling, fencing, soccer football, modern pentathlon, field hockey, shooting, yachting, rowing, basketball, cycling, equestrian, gymnastics, boxing, weight lifting and canoeing. In track, gymnastics and swimming there is competition for women as well as men.

Osborn Resigns

AKRON —(AP)— Ted Osborn, veteran head coach at Akron Central High school, today announced his resignation to accept a position as end coach for the University of Kentucky football team. He formerly was an assistant coach at Ohio Wesleyan, Ohio State and Akron universities.

Ohio State Cager Signs as Pitcher With Philadelphia

CHILLICOTHE — (AP) — Neil Johnston, 19-year-old varsity center on Ohio State university's basketball team, signed today as a pitcher with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Heinie Groh and Eddie Krajnik, who operated a baseball school here, said the elongated youngster was a "second Ewell Blackwell," and that he received the largest bonus ever given a player signed at a baseball tryout camp.

Krajnik said: "In appearance, style and ability, he's a second Blackwell, and he has the size, arm, courage, horse sense and unorthodox delivery to make good."

Johnston, who said he would continue his schooling by attending Ohio State two semesters annually, will report to Terre Haute, Ind., in the Three-Eye league next March.

The tall kid, who has been pitching only two years after starting as a first baseman, said he had previously received offers from the St. Louis Cards and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

HERE'S THE ANSWER!

That long, long road you've traveled in search of a home leads to, and should end on, Beachwood Drive. This brick veneer bungalow, of recent construction, was built by one of the city's leading contractors. We'll tell you his name and you'll know the construction is eighteen carat. Lovely livingroom, two cheerful, ample bedrooms and combination kitchen and dinette and beautiful tiled bath all on one floor. Full basement with gas furnace and floored, double insulated attic which may be finished off in two additional rooms with not too great expense. Attached garage and large lot, sixty by one-eighty. Venetian blinds and exquisite carpeting in living room are included. Homes of this type, so perfect for the small family, do not often reach the market and this one should move quickly. Call at once if interested. Call Mr. Speck or Mr. Foulkes.

Business and Home Combination

A beautiful ranch style home does not even start to describe this lovely, modern in every respect home. It's super! Listen! Large living room with wood burning fireplace. The fireplace has a black plate glass front with knotty pine wood covering the entire side of living room that houses the fireplace. Reception vestibule and closet, large dining room with French doors and built-in corner cupboards. The kitchen is the modern built-in feature type with snack bar and kitchenette. Two large bedrooms are another fine feature of this home with all cedar lined closets, nice tile bath with shower. Basement is under the full house with fireplace in recreation room, stationary laundry tubs, automatic coal furnace and air conditioning, plus a large fruit cellar. Also a nice size garage with a breeze-way connecting to the house. The grocery store is housed in a separate building away from the home and has a brand new meat case, scales, and slicer. A nice grocery stock fills the entire store along with a gas pump out in front. The lot is a large corner site with approximately 129x120. This business is located edge city limits of Shelby. Good reason for selling. Don't pass this one up if you are looking for a fine home and business with an income and a good future. Home and store one year old. Either can be bought separately or as one complete unit including equipment and stock.

WE ASK NO BONUS FOR GOOD SERVICE

We started business back in 1897, we are an old firm. Been in the automobile business since 1909. We used to sell buggies. We now sell nice shiny Chryslers and Plymouths; when we can get them. We're mighty proud of our more than fifty years in the transportation business and we're mighty happy that so many of our old customers pay us a visit now and then.

We've learned a lot about people as well as advances in motor service logic since 1909. We've come to have a lot of respect for our customers just as we've come to have a lot of respect for their feelings. We know we are not perfect, but we are still trying to be. Our employees are not only capable but extra polite, each one of them aware that this business has been built up by the good will of our customers.

During the past years of hectic shortages and avid buying it might have been so-called "good business" for us to rest on our laurels, but seriously, we believe that we have a greater responsibility than ever to carry out our tradition faithfully and to keep our reputation intact.

Carrying ON a name is one thing—carrying OUT a great tradition is another, we cannot rest on the laurels of the past. We have never been content to rely solely on our reputation for prompt and accurate service. We maintain our standards by trying to do things that are not generally obtainable elsewhere.

We keep up to the minute on advances in automotive service and equipment. We keep our sales and service house in order. Here you still find courtesy just as tho our storehouse was full of new cars. Here you find the same high standard of Quality, Good Taste and Fine Workmanship. Thus, as we continue to carry on our name, we are also carrying out our tradition . . . WE ASK NO BONUS FOR GOOD SERVICE.

TAKE IT OUT AND THROW IT AWAY

Of course your oil filter is foul and full of folly after ten thousand miles—so take it out and throw it away. It costs almost nothing for a new one, and oh the difference those few cents make. Do it now, so your engine gets the purity of oil it must have—so you get the performance you expect.

AND SOME OTHER THINGS TO THINK OF

While you're with us let us overhaul you for good Spring and Summer going.

- We'll change your oils and greases,
- We'll adjust your brakes,
- We'll tune your engine,
- We'll scrub and clean you,
- We'll align your wheels.

We'll do everything that's needed.

DON'T DRIVE WITH YOUR FINGERS CROSSED

AND WHILE YOU'RE PAUSING WITH US — HERE ARE SOME OTHER THINGS WE DO FOR YOU — for a happy, safe and comfortable summer of driving.

TRIUMPH MOTORCYCLES

Triumph is still the best Motorcycle in the World. Built by one of the oldest and most successful Manufacturer of Motorcycles in the world today. Their design is years ahead of all others so much so that all leading manufacturers are copying the design. Don't buy a copy—buy the original vertical twin with all the latest advancements in motorcycle design. A few of the features that others claim as new have been standard on Triumph for more than 10 years. Such as the 30-50 cu. in. vertical twin motor that develops 34 brake horsepower at 7000 R.P.M. Transmission, four speed with positive step foot change, fully enclosed. Hand controlled, cork insert clutch. Lubrication, full circulating, high pressure oiling to all moving parts. Ignition system, high tension magneto with automatic spark advance. Fork, telescopic, hydraulically controlled, over 6" movement. Rear suspension, is by the patented spring wheel, a combination that makes a perfect steering, road holding and riding motorcycle.

Iron Curtain No Barrier To Russian Publications

By CLARKE BEACH

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Despite the so-called iron curtain, tons of printed matter on Russian scientific and industrial activities are being imported into this country.

Soviet presses pour out hundreds of magazines, newspapers and reports covering an enormous range of subjects. A few copies of nearly all of interest to us find their way to some government or private library.

It isn't propaganda for foreign consumption. It's the same stuff which is distributed to Soviet administrators and specialists.

Russian language specialists here say that any American who can read Russian can learn practically as much about the Soviets as any well-placed official in Russia outside the Kremlin.

Of course we are not receiving any top secret material, and no Russian publication contains national production figures or information of direct military value.

But trained statisticians say they take what information is supplied, put the pieces together and come out with a fairly clear picture of what is happening in the Soviet Union.

The export of some publications is forbidden, under pain of extreme penalties, but according to our experts there is very little we really want we can't manage to procure.

However, the enormous amount of Russian stuff which is received here is not being well used, according to many of the Russian experts. The difficulty is both with cataloguing and translating.

CIRCULATION LIMITED

The Russians print a very limited number of copies of each publication—usually only from 2,000 to 5,000 copies each. They say paper and printing equipment are too scarce to print more. And only surplus copies are sent abroad.

Most of the few copies that come to this country are sent to the Library of Congress or to other government or private libraries with which the Soviet government has exchange agreements — swapping magazine for magazine, book for book. The others are sent over for sale, mostly through the Four Continent Book corporation of New York, a Soviet government agency.

One government expert on Russian production complained that after trying for months he was unable to get the Soviet periodical "Steel." He assumed it couldn't be had.

I mentioned this to a private research man in a library a few blocks away. He looked surprised. He showed me a complete file of "Steel" on his shelves.

AGENCY NEEDED

Another expert had been told after diligent search that it was impossible to obtain a copy of the Russian national bibliography, listing all Soviet publications. A few days later I saw two copies of this book in another library.

What we need, one official suggests, is a new agency, either private or governmental, to catalog everything received. The agency would also have a staff of translators, trained chiefly for scientific and technical work, which would see that any information of value was put at the disposal of the government or of science and industry.

The Library of Congress has made a start at the cataloging process. It publishes each month a list of its own Russian accessions and those of any other library which will cooperate.

The Library got 298 Russian books and pamphlets last month and is now receiving regularly 273 Russian magazines and 41 newspapers. The newspapers arrive by air, usually four or five days after publication. The magazines are often a couple of months late.

In the first three months of this year the United States imported from Russia $23,000 worth of printed matter—more than half again as much as we imported in the same period last year.

The Russians in the same months this year imported $33,000 worth of U.S. printed matter. This consumption, however, is diminishing a little. In the full year 1946 they imported $624,640 worth—making up apparently, for what they had missed during the war.

Many of the experts say that only a small proportion of the Russian material is being read, because qualified translators are not available. Of all the mass of material received, the translators are only scratching the surface.

Most translators are Russian emigres who have been in this country since the Bolshevik revolution or before. Very few of them do well with scientific material. And anyway the supply of emigres is running out.

The schools, however, are entering the breach. Russian language courses are now offered in 140 colleges and Army and Navy graduate schools. Only 40 colleges offered Russian in 1943.

One scientific translator says whole fields of learning are being neglected by the translators, including mathematics, astronomy, some phases of physics and metallurgy and mechanical and electrical engineering.

Scientists say that what Russia's scientists and industrialists are doing cannot safely be ignored. Although Russia always has had some important scientists, she has never before conducted research on such a vast and systematic scale as now.

ROBBED THIRD TIME

HAMILTON —(AP)— The Merchant's Finance company lost $500 yesterday in its third robbery since last March. Police said Mrs. Neva Crouch, a clerk who was handcuffed to the floor in the firm's last robbery, was forced into a back room with two customers by a bandit who then took the money. The company estimated its losses in the two previous robberies at $1,100 or $1,200.

Leaders Change In France

Andre Marie Named Premier

By ROBERT EUNSON

PARIS — (AP) — French middle-of-the-road political leaders retained their control over the government this week despite the fall of Robert Schuman's cabinet. But they had to sacrifice Foreign Minister Georges Bidault to do it.

A half-dozen centrist parties spent this week pooling their strength to give Andre Marie more than the $11 votes he needed in the national assembly. Marie was designated premier when Schuman's cabinet fell after eight months in power.

Marie planned to give Schuman the foreign minister's job and kick Bidault upstairs.

Bidault, who has steered French foreign policy almost continuously since the liberation, finally made himself unpopular with French deputies when he agreed at the six-power conference in London to the United States policy of creating a German government without the eastern Germans. He is slated to become minister of state, an advisory cabinet post, in the new government.

Firing Bidault as foreign minister was only one of many maneuvers the 50-year-old Marie is making to form his government and still exclude two of the country's most powerful political groups. Neither the communists nor avowed followers of Gen. Charles De Gaulle will have a portfolio in the cabinet.

FACES TWO FOES

The Marie government, therefore, will find itself in the same position as the Schuman government—attacked on two sides by the communists and the De Gaullists who will team up on many issues, bitter enemies though they be.

Changing the leadership of France at this time creates confusion by throwing into question the Mayer plan for economic recovery. Rene Mayer, outgoing finance minister, was striving to reestablish confidence in the franc, ing about drastic economies in vernment expenditure and encourage business to a greater effort at increasing production.

But Marie's government has the opportunity of coming in at a time when crops are good and ready to harvest. The wheat fields, the apples of Normandy and other fruit and grain crops of France will be rolling to market in the next few months. Prices have a good chance of going down.

In order to retain control, the middle-of-the-roaders had to move slightly to the right. Marie is a Radical Socialist, slightly right of center. Schuman, a popular Republican, had a government left of center.

There are 620 votes in the national assembly. Schuman's cabinet bunched together a theoretical 339 by including the Popular Republicans, Socialists and Radical Socialists. Marie will add two more parties, the Independent Republicans and the Party of Republican Liberty and stretch the critical vote to nearly 400.

Four Plants Reactivated

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The munitions board has announced today that four war plants in the midwest are being reactivated in connection with the joint navy and air force aircraft program.

The board said that it has approved agreements with the two services calling for activation of the following plants:

1. Naval industrial reserve plant (Plancor 1213) Kansas City, Mo., to be operated by the Westinghouse corporation for manufacture of advance design jet engines.

2. North shop of the former Wright Aeronautical plant at Lockland Ohio (plancor 10), now owned by the Electric Autolite company, to be operated by General Electric company for production of jet engines

3. Walworth company plant, Washington Park, Ill., to be operated by Emerson Electric company, for production of fire control systems for bombers.

4. Boeing aircraft assembling plant (plancor 34) Wichita, Kan to be operated by Boeing Aircraft Tappany, for bomber modification and production

Wallace Platform Calls For Peace With Russia

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— The platform drafted for Henry Wallace's Progressive party declares it will fight "for the constitutional rights" of communists to freedom of speech.

The 7,000-word document was made public aturday. It is to be formally adopted tomorrow.

It calls for 1. Peace with Russia; 2. Repeal of America's draft law; 3. Destruction of all atom bombs; 4. Government ownership of large segments of industry—and "full equality" for Negroes, Jewish people and all minority Americans.

It aspires to using the United Nations "as a foundation for eventual federal world government."

The "communist" plank, not in the original draft of the platform, appeared in the final version after Wallace himself had examined the drafting work of the party's 74-member platform committee. This plank says:

"The Progressive party will fight for the constitutional rights of communists and all other political groups to express their views as the first line in the defense of the liberties of a democratic people."

The Democratic platform condemns communism and pledges the party to expose and prosecute treasonable activities. The Republican platform calls for enactment of such laws as necessary to expose the "treasonable" activities of communists and defeat their objectives.

In the self-styled "peace, freedom and abundance" platform, Wallace's progressive party demands a return to price controls to fight the high cost of living

It proposes to out-new deal the new deal, promising "a greater new deal"

PROMISES VETS BONUS

For veterans it promises a bonus — without mentioning the size

In a "Wallace or war" foreign plank, the party accuses Democratic and Republican parties of embarking on a "drive to war," and demands "negotiation and discussion with the Soviet Union to find areas of agreement to win the peace.

It calls for repudiation of the Marshall plan for European aid, for handling of aid through the United Nations, for strengthening of the United Nations as "a foundation for eventual federal world government."

Several changes were noted in platform text after it had gone through Wallace's hands, although it is not known what revisions may have been made at his suggestion

Knocked out was the preliminary draft's demand that the United States recall its representative to the Vatican.

The document—drawn under the direction of Rexford Guy Tugwell, an original "braintruster" of Franklin D Roosevelt's "New Deal"—declares the party to be the political heir "of Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln—of Frederick Douglass, Altgeld and Debs—of 'Fighting Bob' Lafollette, George Norris and Franklin Roosevelt"

Originally the document included Woodrow Wilson as one whom the party claims it is heir to. Wilson was "scratched" in the final draft and the names of Lafollette and Norris were entered.

Besides its own promises, the platform uses about 1,000 words to say how bad the Democratic and Republican parties are. It says their platforms, "conceived in hypocrisy and lack of principle, deserve nothing but contempt."

Injured Boy Taken Home

Gordon Zahner, 12, left General hospital Saturday about 2 p. m. after a piece of metal was removed from below his left shoulder.

Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Zahner, 563 Highland avenue, was injured Friday about 9 a. m in an unusual accident.

Standing beside Eugene Alt, 14, Gordon was struck by a broken piece of a shell extractor when a gun backfired as Eugene fired at a crow. The boys had gone with young Alt's father, Carl F. Alt, 196 Bennett street, on a fishing trip to Mifflin Lake.

The elder Alt had stopped his car to permit Eugene to fire through the window. He quickly rushed Gordon to the hospital where the piece of metal was removed.

Ask Negro Be Named Patrolman

Committee Sends Letter to Mayor

The Richland County Anti-Discrimination committee has asked Mayor Roy W. Vaughn to appoint a Negro patrolman to the Mansfield police force.

In an open letter signed by Mrs. Jean Pival, the committee's secretary, the group said "the Negro population of Mansfield has long wanted a representative of their race on the police force."

The letter stated that the Anti-Discrimination committee has learned that the chief reason none have been placed on the force has been that "few have taken the examination and none have qualified for some time."

The group which visited the mayor several weeks ago in behalf of a Negro ex-Marine who is on the eligibility list, wrote the mayor that they did not approach him to "high pressure him to appoint someone that in his judgment and in accordance with the requirement of civil service, was not qualified, but . . . (to see that) justice was done"

Two appointments have been made since a Negro applicant was called for an interview. According to your own admission," the committee wrote Mayor Vaughn, "this would place him at the head of the eligibility list. If this applicant is overlooked this time, his name will be dropped from the list.

"Your office has informed all committees that visited you that no discrimination is practiced in hiring personnel. So we feel free in asking you to take the very first opportunity that presents itself to give employment on the police force to this Negro applicant."

Stamps Honor Flag, Youth

The U. S. commemorative stamp parade marches on. The official descriptions of the Francis Scott Key and "Salute To Youth" stamps, both 3-centers, have been announced by Postmaster General Donaldson.

The Francis Scott Key stamp is red and bears a portrait of Key in an oval below which appears his name. The American flags of 1814 and today are draped on opposite sides of the portrait. The old Key home appears in the lower left corner and Fort McHenry in the lower right. Waving ribbons identify each. The stamp will be placed on first day sale at Frederick, Md., Aug. 9, 1948.

The "Salute To Youth" stamp shows a girl and boy carrying books. On the right is a dark shield on which is a light panel with the words "Youth Month Sept 1-30, 1948." The first day of sale will be Aug. 11, 1948, at Washington, D. C. President Truman will officiate at the cere-

BOMB SCARE AT U. N. HEADQUARTERS—A long object which police said might have been a home-made bomb was dropped from a small plane at United Nations Headquarters at Lake Success, N. Y., exploding in the air (A) over the highway in front of the U. N. buildings. Explosion was near gate on road leading to the Security Council Chamber (B) and 400 feet from the Main U. N. Building (C) housing offices of Trygve Lie, secretary general. (AP Wirephoto)

Zoning Protects Property Owner

A zoning law is a form of property insurance that cannot be obtained in any other way. The prospective home-builder or home-buyer should assure himself, before building or buying, that zoning restrictions prevent encroachment by factories or other establishments which will lower his property's value.

Even in an area covered by zoning regulations, property-owners must be on guard that variances are not granted by local officials which may lead eventually to depreciation of the neighborhood. Any proposed changes must be advertised. In such cases, affected property-owners should attend hearings on the matter. Unless protests are filed, officials usually will grant applications for variances.

Reds Develop Healing Honey

MOSCOW —(AP)— Experiments in healing with honey are continuing at a rapid pace in the Soviet Union where much progress has been reported.

A message from Sverdlovsk in Gudok said, a candidate for a medical degree, Iorish, is conducting interesting experiments in the Urals for obtaining healing honey and multiple-vitamin honey.

The bees, it was reported, are fed on honey or sugar liquid to which some medicinal substance or vitamin has been added.

Some of the kinds of honey obtained are carrot-milk, carrot-cabbage, egg-milk-carrot and black currant. More than 80 different types of healing honey are now being prepared.

U. N. Bomb Case Delayed

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — (U.P.) — Stephen J. Supina, who dropped a "peace bomb" on United Nations headquarters at Lake Success, was granted a continuance until Monday when he was brought up for arraignment Saturday in city court.

The former air force gunner, who said he wanted to "wake up" UN diplomats to the danger of a third world war, was held without bail as a fugitive from justice.

Three detectives from Nassau county, New York, were waiting to take Supina into custody after the arraignment. He has agreed to waive extradition proceedings.

A warrant for the flier's arrest was signed in Mineola, N.Y., yesterday. He was charged with violating the Sullivan law by illegally possessing explosives. But police said the Stafford Springs, Conn., lunch-wagon operator would probably be examined by a psychiatrist first.

Supina claimed he dropped the bomb merely to attract attention to a message released at the same time, and not to injure anyone on the ground The bomb was detonated by 300 feet of wire attached to flashlight batteries in the plane.

Decision Delayed On $5,000 Reward

The $5,000 reward posted by Richland county for information leading to the apprehension and conviction of the slayers of the Niebel family will not be awarded until after the conviction of Robert M. Daniels, Chairman John Selby of the county commissioners said Saturday. The $5,000 reward resolution passed by the commissioners included the word "conviction."

U. S. Diplomats Meet In London to Discuss Berlin Crisis

Allies Lack Agreement On Problem

British, French To Attend Parley

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

LONDON —(AP)— American experts on Russian affairs from Washington, Berlin and Moscow converged on London Saturday to discuss with western power partners a unified policy on the German crisis.

Their mission underscored the tense east-west differences over the Soviet blockade of Berlin, and a lack of agreement among the western allies on just how to proceed.

The American huddle here will bring together Charles E. Bohlen, state department counsellor and Russian expert; W. Bedell Smith, U. S. ambassador to Moscow; and Lewis Douglas, the Ambassador here.

They were expected to confer with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Ambassador Rene Massigli on the terms of a second western power protest against the Berlin blockade.

Bohlen was flying here in an army plane with Gen. Lucius D. Clay, U. S. military governor in Germany, and Robert Murphy, Clay's political adviser. Clay and Murphy will discuss with Douglas the German situation, and the results of their conferences with President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall.

COMPLETE REVIEW

Significantly, the three-man diplomatic team — Bohlen, Smith and Douglas—is the same which helped United States policy in the deadlocked meeting of the foreign ministers' council here last December.

American diplomatic officials here privately reported the meeting will bring a complete review of American relations with Russia. All three have helped form that policy since the war's end.

Bohlen, fluent in Russian, served as interpreter and adviser at big three meetings and at sessions of the foreign ministers' council before being elevated to his present post.

Douglas has been instrumental in tightening the ties between the United States and western Europe and in the stand against the spread of communism. He drafted the first American note protesting Berlin's blockade.

Smith has held the Moscow assignment since shortly after the war.

The big question was this:

How far will the United States go in meeting a Russian demand for new four-power talks on all German questions?

The position of Britain and France was comparatively clear.

France has demonstrated its willingness to discuss Germany's problems on a top level basis.

Britain, too, has signified its willingness to go into such a conference after—as Bevin told Commons on Friday — Russia ends its blockade of rail and road transportation to Berlin.

In the initial formal protest, it was the United States which took the lead in limiting proposed four-power talks to the question of Berlin alone.

There have been mounting indications of a change in this stand since Russia rejected that demand. Responsible diplomatic sources here reported the task of drafting a second protest to Moscow was turned over to Britain.

Delay Seen In City Code

Solicitor Struggles With Traffic Law

City Solicitor C. J. Kalbfleisch said yesterday there is a "slim chance" that that traffic law recodification ordinance, incorporating a 25-miles-an-hour limit on city bus routes, will be ready for council action on Aug. 3.

Kalbfleisch, with the assistance of Atty. Robert Ross, has been struggling for several months to make order out of chaos in the city's traffic rules and regulations.

Object of the tedious work is to bring all of the city's traffic laws together, up to date and in one place.

This will not only allow for a more adequate control of the traffic problem confronting the city but also will increase municipal revenues.

The revenue increases will be affected by incorporating in the new traffic ordinance, identical ordinance with those on the state statutes. Hence, fines collected from violations of those laws will go into the city treasury instead of the county treasury as is the case at present.

Ross and Kalbfleisch have finished the job of going through all city ordinance volumes and taking out the traffic ordinances. They are now studying certain minor additions, including a law to prohibit the crossing of corner-filling station to avoid traffic lights.

Kalbfleisch said the re-codification will not include any major changes except a law stipulating that the speed limit on bus routes, except those on state routes, shall be 25 miles an hour.

Heretofore the limit has been 35 miles per hour as stipulated by state law. However, the city has exercised a right granted by law and has successfully petitioned the state highway department to allow a reduction of speed limit on bus routes not coinciding with state and federal highways.

Auto Prices Up

DETROIT — (AP) — General Motors Corp., last of the big auto firms to hold out against a higher 1948 price level, gave in yesterday and tagged passenger cars with an eight per cent increase.

The price boost becomes effective Monday on Cadillacs, Buicks, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs and Chevrolets.

W. G. Walter Dies at 67

Willis G. Walter, 67, died unexpectedly yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas A. Dillon, 234 Sturges avenue. Mr. Walter had been in ill health for some time.

Born Oct. 12, 1880, in Pennsylvania, he had lived most of his life in this vicinity. Mr. Walter was a retired employe of the Westinghouse corporation.

Surviving are his daughter, Mrs. Dillon, with whom he made his home; two sisters, Mrs. Anna Richards of Columbus and Mrs. Charles Miller of Sandusky.

Funeral services in the St. Peter's Catholic church in Loudonville, Tuesday at 10 a. m. will be in charge of Rev. Father Lembach. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Friends may call at the Dillon home. Funeral arrangements are in charge of Wappner funeral directors.

Rich Woman's Will Hunted

LONDON — A wartime mine detector, sensitive to the presence of metal, will be used in a final effort to find the will of a secretive old lady who had a habit of hiding things.

She was Mrs. Daisy Alexander, who was 80 years old when she died of shock following a bomb explosion in 1940. She was the wealthy daughter of Isaac Singer, whose nvientions and commercial astuteness created the Singer Sewing machine company.

Her wealth was estimated at more than £3,000,000 ($12,000,000), and income which she scarcely touched amounted to £40,000 ($160,000) a year.

during his interview with Lutz, had said that he and West left the Mansfield area immediately after they shot the three Niebels down in the cornfield off Flemings Falls road early Wednesday morning. It was there the nude bodies of the three victims were found Wednesday by the counselor for a Lutheran boys' camp about 12 hours after the Niebels were removed forcibly from their home at 1399 North Main street.

Daniels himself sulked in his jail cell at Celina between interviews with police officers interested in obtaining custody of him or seeking statements about various other crimes.

West's body was en route for Parkersburg, W. Va., for burial.

SHAFFER FILES CHARGE

Sheriff Shaffer of Van Wert filed a formal charge of shooting a policeman with intent to kill against Daniels to assure that he would be held pending decision on where he would be tried. Although Policeman Conn was shot by West, Prosecutor Alter T. Stroup of Van Wert said Daniels could be charged as an abettor to the shooting. By the same legal interpretation, Daniels could be charged with first degree murder in event Conn should die. An accomplice of a murderer, by law, is just as guilty of murder as the person who does the actual killing.

All of Ohio, returning to normalcy after the reign of terror spread by the two ruthless desperadoes, the question was being asked:

"What makes men do such things? What is the cause behind it? Were these boys the same type as John Dillinger and his gang?"

Dr. E. J. Humphreys, Ohio mental hygiene director; State Highway Patrol Superintendent Col. George Mingle; Mansfield Reformatory Superintendent Arthur Glattke, and several others offered answers.

Dr. Humphreys said.

"There are many things which enter into making persons start on ruthless crime careers. Broken homes, discord in the family, improper supervision in youth, are only a few.

"Both Daniels and West were affected with syphilis. And a syphilized mind often leads to an alteration of personality, affecting the brain tissues as that disease does.

"Men with such minds are prone to exaggerate some things. Undoubtedly they were hostile to society, and in the killing of the Niebel family they probably heaped all their concentrated hate on them, as one grand gesture of contempt for society."

MET IN HOSPITAL HERE

Glattke said the two killers were not closely connected at the reformatory, but probably met frequently while undergoing treatment for syphilis in the institution's hospital.

Glattke described West as mentally deficient, with the intelligence of a moron, and Daniels as of normal intelligence, but with a psychopathic personality and with no realization of the consequence of his actions.

Col. Mingle, whose entire highway patrol made a part of the huge noose looped over northern Ohio Friday which led to the capture of the killers, saw little similarity between the crime careers of the pair and Dillinger.

"Dillinger and his gang were more mature," Mingle said, "and crime to Dillinger was a business. (Not too good a business, for he had only $7.80 in his pocket when he was shot to death by the FBI, July 22, 1934, in front of a Chicago theater where he had been lured by a 'woman in red.')

"West and Daniels were just a couple of punks with a grudge who went gun crazy," Mingle continued. "Where Dillinger and his gang planned every move they made, West and Daniels never planned a thing. Even the Niebel killings weren't planned the way they turned out.

"Daniels said they went to Mansfield to kill a guard, but turned on the Niebels after they couldn't locate him. After that they just kept moving, killing as they went.

"The two Tiffin murders were examples of their ruthlessness. Both were so unnecessary. Dillinger and his gang did their killings as part of planned robberies, or in shooting it out with police. They didn't kill people for no reason at all."

GANG KILLED 15

(The Dillinger gang was credited with 15 killings in its years of marauding through the middle west — but four of them, including Dillinger, surrendered without firing a shot Jan. 25, 1934, when cornered by Tucson, Ariz., officers.)

It was at Lima, 85 miles west of here, that the Dillinger gang popped up with one of its most spectacular escapades.

Dillinger, picked up in connection with a $2,800 Bluffton bank robbery, was in the Allen county jail. About the same time 10 men broke out of the Michigan City, Ind., prison.

On Oct. 12, 1933, three of the 10 men walked into the office of Sheriff Jess L. Sarber and told the officer:

"We've come for Dillinger."

Asked for their credentials, they produced pistols and said:

"Here they are."

Sarber reached for his gun and was shot to death before he could get it out of his holster. The trio forced Mrs. Sarber to produce the keys to the cells, and Dillinger was freed. The quartet got away.

Up in smoke went charges that Dillinger had been mixed up in a $21,000 robbery at Indianapolis, a $24,000 job at Farrell, Pa., and a $35,000 bank holdup at New Carlisle, O.

He stayed at large until the January capture in Tucson, when officers recovered $36,000 in cash and $12,500 in uncut diamonds.

Dillinger was returned to Crown Point, Ind. The three charged with the jail break at Lima — Charles Makley, Russell Clark and Harry Pierpont — were returned there.

ESCAPE RECALLED

Dillinger and a Negro felon, Herbert Youngblood, cracked out of the Crown Point jail March 3, 1934, and he stayed out until the FBI and the "Lady In Red" combined to kill him as he walked out of the theater after seeing a crime picture entitled "Manhattan Melodrama."

Makley and Pierpont were sentenced to Ohio's electric chair for Sarber's murder. Clark got a life term. After wearing out all the possible appeals, Makley and Pierpont attempted a break from the penitentiary death house and came close to making it.

They carved a gun from soap, wrapped it in tinfoil from cigaret packages, and forced their way from their cell. Before they could get from the death house enclosure, however, guards mowed both down, killing Makley and crippling Pierpont so badly he had to be carried to the electric chair when he finally paid the supreme penalty, the only one of the Dillinger gang to be executed formally by the law.

Despite the long list of crimes attributed to the Dillinger gang, only one murder charge ever was filed against the leader. That was for the slaying of a Chicago policeman in a roadhouse holdup.

Beside the Dillinger saga, the story of West and Daniels is a colorless affair up to the early morning of July 10 when they, admittedly drunk, walked into the Ambrose tavern in Columbus and shot the owner down with seven bullets as he walked away from them. Earl C. Ambrose evidently thought the pair, well known in the tavern, were kidding. After that, until they ran into the road block Friday morning, they probably were the most ruthless killers the state ever saw.

Mystery B-17 Crew Returns; Government Arrests Pilot

NEW YORK—(AP)—Nine men who took a B-17 on a mystery flight, apparently headed for Palestine, returned from the Azores Saturday. Their leader immediately was arrested by the FBI.

The man Irvin R. Schindler, 32, pilot of the plane, was quickly arraigned on a charge of violating the neutrality act by illegally exporting an implement of war—the B-17.

He was released in $1,000 bail pending federal grand jury action. The U. S. attorney's office said the charge carried a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and two years in jail.

Schindler, whose home town was reported as Miami, Fla., and the eight other men made the trip back from the Azores in a Pan American Airways plane. They made the return trip at their own expense.

They were met at aL Guardia field by a bevy of officials from the FBI and five other government departments — immigration, public health, customs, state department and civil aeronautics administration.

Schindler who piloted the B-17 from here to Halifax and then to the Azores before it was impounded there had only a health examination and a brief spell with the customs men before the FBI whisked him away.

Meanwhile two of the men were ordered to Ellis island because their papers "were not in order." They were Hyman Mark, 23, and Sholom Solowitz, 25, both of Brooklyn.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Wallace Party Named 'Progressive'

NOW OFFICIALLY named "Progressive," the Henry A. Wallace third party movement has reached its convention climax in Philadelphia with the nomination of Wallace for president and Idaho's singing senator, Glen H. Taylor, for vice president.

Today will see adoption of the party platform, which will run so close to Communist party lines as to be indistinguishable, despite Wallace's disclaimer of inviting communist support, as such.

Whatever the third party convention sessions may have lacked in soundness of arguments or evidence of statesmanship, they provided opportunity for display of exuberance of spirits and fanatical zeal that surpassed any of the scenes enacted at the two preceding party conventions held in the same convention hall in historic Philadelphia.

Unlike the nominees of the two main political parties, Wallace makes no claim of expectation to be elected president in November—he hopes for no more than "to get a vote big enough to scare both old parties," and more particularly, to insure the defeat of President Truman, whom Wallace supporters like even less than Governor Dewey, it appears.

The party platform, while not yet adopted, is all in readiness, to the extent of 6,500 words, the key planks already announced.

With the preamble to platform pronouncements of this new party there can be universal accord, for it is acclaimed as "dedicated to the achievement of peace, freedom and abundance for the American people"—than which no finer aspirations can be imagined.

In the planks of the platform, however, there are such clearly defined endorsement of socialistic and communistic doctrines as to reflect the radical thinking of the party chief and his adherents that a study of the proposals will evidence the type of mentality that has been drawn to support of this movement.

It is well that Henry A. Wallace, the idealistic dreamer, has no illusions that lead him to expectation of being elected president of the United States—he will therefore not be disappointed by election returns in November.

Meanwhile there is increasing thankfulness on the part of many Americans that it was Harry S. Truman who gained the vice presidential nomination in Chicago four years ago, and thus succeeded the late President Roosevelt, rather than Henry A. Wallace, who was vice president during the preceding Roosevelt term.

Cost of Feeding Berlin By Air

IT IS COSTING United States taxpayers $23,000 a day to fly food and other supplies to Berlin, according to an Air Force estimate which includes only actual flight costs. This is roughly the amount added to our daily occupation costs by the blockade of Berlin, since supplies normally would be moved by train and barge at little or no cost to the United States.

The food itself costs another $200,000 a day for the British and American sectors of Berlin. The United States is buying the food for the British sector, although the British are providing their own air transportation. Thus the cost to us of the airlift for Berlin supplies, while high enough to be irritating, is not over-burdening, if the Air Force figure is at all accurate. It amounts to not much more than a tenth of our bill for the food itself.

There is more cause for worry over the practical aspect. The air transport system has not yet been built up to capacity sufficient to meet summer needs. When greater quantities of coal are needed in winter, the air-borne supply will fall far short.

South Boulevards Should Be In City

GRADUAL expansion of territorial bounds has been an accepted policy of Mansfield for many years, as population growth extended beyond the limits of corporation bounds designed for a smaller city.

Now moving toward acceptance as a desirable addition to Mansfield is the village of South Boulevards, which adjoins the city on Lexington avenue, and which is a logical part of this municipality.

Mutual advantages are seen in annexation of South Boulevards to Mansfield, and it is confidently anticipated that favorable action will be taken by city council when the matter is presented to that body early in August.

Progress In Solving Polio Puzzle

OCCURRING as the season of most frequent illness begins in most of the country, the first international conference on poliomyelitis in New York has attracted wide attention among puzzled physicians and worried parents.

Reports and discussions at the conference pointed up progress being made in treatment of the disease. Medical people are learning how to lessen the severity of the attack when prompt diagnosis is made, and it is suggested that many incipient cases are prevented altogether by the quick action of parents who put children in bed at the first sign of any disorder during the polio season, even though symptoms of polio may not have appeared. Great gains have been made in reducing, in many instances curing, resulting paralysis.

Emphasized also, somewhat dampening the layman's optimism, is the spreading acceptance of the idea that general rules cannot yet be made for treatment. Differences persist from case to case in the effectiveness of various forms of treatment and therapy. No method can be called best, or be applied with expectation of accurately predicted results.

International comparing of notes still brings no clue to the baffling mystery of the origin and spread of the disease. Research seeking to break this secret has brought only frustration. The ability to hope for prevention of polio lies only in recalling the seemingly boundless patience of people of science, and the long struggles which have culminated in the conquest of other diseases.

Claude Callan advises: "It does little good to put your best foot forward—the other foot will be along in an instant."

A Voice From the Country

Clean-Up of State Department Advised

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

ONE of the first jobs on the "clean up" list when the Republicans get into Washington certainly must be the state department. It is a job long overdue. Promises have been made by one secretary of state after another with virtually no results. At present, are a some 20,000 employes of one sort or another in the department, many of them stepping on each other's toes, many involved in petty feuds and jealousies over jurisdiction and authority, and all of them engaged in turning out reams and reams of red tape.

BROMFIELD

The state department always has been old-fashioned and creaky. It was so even before the war. But during the war it grew like an octopus turning in on itself in the good bureaucratic technique of setting up a new division or a new bureau whenever something a little out of the ordinary arose.

One did not expect much reform from James F Byrnes, for he is the great American compromiser. Despite his promises of action, we were certain to get only more of the compromises which already had snarled up the department.

There was more hope when General Marshall took over, for here at least was a military man and an administrator. But still nothing has happened.

General Marshall, it is true, has had his hands full. But it would have been possible to appoint some capable and trustworthy man to do the job, as Milton Eisenhower did in the case of a department of agriculture which had reached under Henry Wallace and the New Deal a similar degree of confusion.

Somehow the great hopes which all of us had in General Marshall have faded out. No one really has attacked him. No one really has even criticized him. It is just that confidence has faded quietly and reluctantly on the part of the American people.

General Marshall possesses as high a degree of integrity as any man in the world, but it appears that integrity is not enough in handling so difficult and complex a job in times so complex and confusing.

There is need for a profound and detailed knowledge of European and world affairs, an understanding of the pitfalls and deceits of European politics, and a capacity to plan and act upon that knowledge.

In all of this, the efficient and co-ordinated functioning of the state department is of the utmost importance. There is also, of course, the great amount of money paid by taxpayers which is being squandered through confusion and inefficiency.

* * *

Excessive Red Tape.

I HAVE just had a concrete example of the degree to which red tape and bureaucracy have snarled up not only the department but even the lives of human beings.

In an effort to bring to this country from England a young man to be employed for the purpose of making agricultural experiments, I have been forced to spend hours making affidavits, cabling, writing letters, and even presenting confidential information regarding income and family to which the state department and consular service are not legitimately entitled.

I have no alternative but to provide it if I wish to secure the services of the young man. This is so not because of any law passed by Congress but because of the ruling of some insignificant bureaucrat somewhere along the line.

If a similar procedure is to be involved in bringing into this country the 205,000 displaced persons authorized by Congress, those tragic people may as well abandon their hopes now for it will be months, and perhaps years, before they can pass through the jungles of state department rules—if indeed they ever can.

There is still the absurd situation which gives to a single woman bureaucrat the power over passports which determines whether American citizens may or may not leave the country.

In an age when the greatest benefit to peace and unity lies in the free movement of the peoples of the world, our own state department makes such freedom more and more impossible for no reason except the pettifogging authority of bureaucrats and their niggling clerk's fondness for petty details.

Whatever else Mr. Dewey does on his arrival in Washington, one of his first jobs should be to clean the Augean stables of the state department and set it to functioning as a modern and efficient agency of the utmost importance not only to this nation but also to the world.

Twenty Years Ago Today

Wednesday, July 25, 1928.

Man alleged to have swindled 25 to 30 Mansfield business men out of several hundred dollars by misrepresentation was held to grand jury.

E. R. Endly, 22 Sturges avenue, was presented with gold button in recognition of 50 years service with Pennsylvania railroad.

Class of 30 candidates was initiated into Moose lodge, with boxing exhibition by Saprano brothers as feature of entertainment program.

Miss Georganna M. Knight and Thomas O. Walters were married in St. Peter's Catholic church by Rev. J. F. Hebbeler.

Fire department was called to home of George Franklin, 116 Hedges street, at 1:30 a. m.

Clint Hopper, night attendant at North Franklin avenue filling station, was held up and robbed of $30.

Members of Mansfield Credit Rating Bureau and their families held annual picnic at Ruggles Beach.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Rupert F. Cox, West Third street.

Registration and Draft

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — Mixed up about the draft? Here are some answers to questions you may have in mind

To begin with, plenty of points about the draft still are vague, and direct answers can't be given right now to all questions.

That's because selective service still is in the process of getting organized.

For example: 4,000 draft boards—with at least three members to a board—have to be set up, under state directors.

But, first, all the state directors have to be appointed. Then the members of the draft boards have to be appointed.

And they have to find office space to set up shop. All this is expected to be finished by the end of August because—

Men over 18 and under 26 must start registering with those boards August 30 and the registration ends September 18. The 25-year old men start registering first.

(There'll be continuing registration after September 18, of course, for youths as they reach 18. About 100,000 reach 18 every month.)

Under the law, as passed by Congress, actual drafting of men cannot start before September 22.

But because of various delays—such as time needed for classifying the registrants, and so on—the draft probably won't start before October 1 at the earliest.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey suggested vaguely that maybe the first men to be drafted will be those 25 years old.

(If the army wants to get the 25-year-olds it has to grab them fast because every month a lot of them reach 26 and are thus over the draft age.)

But that idea of Hershey's at this moment is very vague indeed. Hershey at this point frankly says he doesn't know whether the 25-year-olds will be called first.

* * *

Some To Be Deferred.

IN CASE you have doubts about it, keep this in mind:

All war veterans under 26 must register between August 30 and September 18. That doesn't mean they'll be drafted. But they must register.

So must all members of the National Guard and Reserve units—if they are under 26—unless they're on active duty.

Another thing that hasn't been worked out yet in detail is the matter of deferments.

Some kinds of deferments—such as youths studying for the ministry—are clearly stated in the draft law.

But there are various problems of deferment still to be worked out and interpreted by selective service.

Under the draft law only men over 19 and under 26 can be drafted. When they are drafted, their length of service is 21 months. And they can be used anywhere: Inside the United States or overseas.

But—youths over 18 and under 19, although they must register, cannot be drafted till they've reached their 19th birthday.

Yet—those youths over 18 but under 19 can enlist for one year. By doing that, they escape the longer 21 months' service if they wait till they're 19 and are drafted.

And they'll serve their one year inside the United States. They can't be used overseas. But when they get out, they must spend four to six years in a reserve outfit.

But—not all 18 year old youths can volunteer and be accepted. That's because the draft law limits the number of such youths who can enlist to 161,000 a year. There are about 1,200,000 youths over 18 and under 19.

That means those who can't enlist, because the quota of 161,000 has been used up, must wait till they're 19 and then face being drafted for 21 months' service instead of the 12 they could have had if they enlisted at 18.

Report Russian Troop Concentrations

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Uncensored dispatches from behind the Iron Curtain have increased the fear that Russia may be ready for war NOW. Hitherto diplomats felt certain that the Soviet did not want war for at least two or three years — until she could develop the A-bomb. But here are some developments which have taken place behind the Iron Curtain. 1. The Communist-controlled Czech government has just received orders from Moscow to empty a large number of army barracks in western Czechoslovakia in preparation for the early arrival of large Russian troop concentrations.

PEARSON

It's important to remember that Czechoslovakia is adjacent to the American zone of Germany. If this report is accurate, the Red army is moving up units to face U. S. troops in the American zone.

2. The Russians have ordered thousands of bilingual signposts erected all the way from the Soviet border to the German border for the use of Red army divisions. Word that these signposts are being set up has leaked out through the Czech underground. They all point in the direction of Berlin and Paris.

3. Russia has just occupied 15 new air bases in eastern Germany, west of the Soviet border. Some of these air bases are staffed with the Russian version of the B-29, copied from B-29s which were forced down in Siberia during the war.

4. Russia has quietly summoned home for consultation some of the most trusted diplomats in its foreign service, leaving relative second-stringers in charge of its embassies.

5. Word has gone out from Moscow for the immediate purge of all dissident and weak elements in the Communist party throughout Europe. This means any communist who doesn't toe the Moscow line unflinchingly is to be ousted. This order reportedly has the blessing of Premier Stalin. It is interpreted to mean that the Kremlin is gearing for a final showdown.

* * *

Balloons To Russia.

SECRETARY for Air Stuart Symington and Air Force officers are giving serious consideration to the idea of having B-29s drop propaganda messages to the Russian people at the same time that the B-29s reinforce our position in Berlin.

Purpose of the idea would be to remind the Russian people that the American and Russian armies battled as comrades to win the recent war, that our right to remain in Berlin was part of that victory, that the American people do not want war with their former comrades-in-arms and that the propaganda fed them by the Moscow radio that we are panting for war is so much poppycock.

Back of the idea also would be the fact that the 14 men in the Politburo alone can put Russia into a war—unless there is a strong negative urge among the Russian people not to go to war.

And the only way to give them that negative urge is to go over the Kremlin's head to make them understand that the American people do not want war either.

* * *

Government Reaction.

HERE is the first-blush reaction of government officials to the idea of getting these peace appeals via weather balloons to the Russian people:

Weather Bureau—It's perfectly feasible to float small weather balloons from Western Europe to Russia. About 7 out of 10 would get there. By gauging the amount of gas in the balloons it would be possible to fix the approximate point for their landing inside Russia. The Japs measured the distance across the Pacific during the war to land balloons in the Pacific Northwest.) Best launching place would be Germany or northern France. They would drift at a speed of from 25 to 50 miles an hour once they reached the upper wind currents.

Air Forces — Unofficially, think the idea is good. However, past experience shows that balloons released from planes in flight crash against the fuselage and break. Therefore, it's proposed that the balloons be released from the ground. (Weather bureau says this is feasible.)

State Department—Unofficially and very cautiously, thinks idea might be all right.

War Assets Administration — Had large supply of balloons on hand but they're now sold out. Army Signal Corps and weather bureau have a certain number which could be borrowed and replaced later.

If it is important to get friendship messages from the American people to the Russian people, then ways and means can be found for doing it.

Various patriotic Americans have volunteered to print the messages free, donate candy, wrist watches, etc., to be sent with the messages. The government has plenty of resourcefulness to put across this propaganda — if it wants to.

In wartime we make any sacrifice—blood and treasure—to end a war which has already started. But in peacetime we count the pennies when it comes to preventing a war before it gets started.

Assignment: America

Surveying the Junkpiles

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON—The draft machinery is being set up. According to Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director, the new selective service system will start pulling men in the 19-through-25 bracket into the armed services for a 21-month stretch by October.

Already, 18-year-olds are flocking to the recruiting stations to sign up for a 12-month hitch which will immunize them against having to serve the longer period when they are a year older—barring the advent of war, of course.

Thus, even before the newly-legalized machinery is rolling, the nation's military manpower is being mobilized to present a national preparedness front in the face of current world crisis.

Meanwhile, the nation's military materiel situation continues to remain critical, and the manner in which it got that way currently is causing worried huddles all the way from the Pentagon to Capitol Hill.

Unquestionably, it is one of the subjects which will be brought up early in the special session, and charges will be hurled back and forth between political parties and between federal and military branches in a frantic effort to find who was at fault.

But already there is general agreement that the critical situation, developing this soon after the war and in the face of growing international unrest, is a national scandal that would never be repeated.

* * *

Abandoned Equipment.

TYPICAL is the case of trucks, truck-trailers and tank-trucks, which was brought to light this week by the appeal of manufacturers of such equipment for more steel with which to increase their output to meet the demands of a postwar civilian economy.

Here in Washington, the truck-trailer manufacturers made a good case for themselves and their need. They pointed out that during the war their civilian production almost stopped while they manufactured thousands upon thousands of truck-trailers and tank-trailers according to military specifications for the war effort.

Those of us who drifted around the world during the war saw those pieces of equipment performing yeoman service all the way from the famed "Red Ball Highway," which became a rolling supply-line across Europe, to the remote Pacific outposts where huge planes passing through were refueled and sent on their way in a matter of minutes.

What then has happened to all that equipment?

In the answer to that oft-repeated question lies a scandal typical of those due to be smoked out during the next few weeks For a sizeable percentage of such equipment, reportedly unadaptable to civilian use, already has been lost to the military.

A shocking proportion of it lies discarded, rusting in junkpiles around the world. Many expensive pieces were junked merely because they needed minor repairs and there were no funds to provide them during the early postwar period.

Other truck-trailers and tank-trailers needed no repair whatever, but when the troops were pulled out, no provision was made for shipping them home. Besides, most of the equipment, built to military specifications, was said to be too heavy to meet interstate commerce commission requirements, and thus not worth the cost of salvage and shipment.

It is, of course, easy to cast recriminations — particularly in an election year—but the probability is that, since the public largely established the national postwar mood, all of us are at least partially at fault. But placing the blame does not ease the grimness of the picture.

Something is going to have to give, and whoever gets short-changed will find the memory of those distant rusting junkpiles and those sold-for-a-song truck-trailers a bitter thing indeed.

And that is only one small case in point.

MASSACHUSETTS farmer John Brown's "master cell" is providing a gentle diversion in the grim news of the day. Either it assures good health to men and plants or it's a big fake. Nobody seems to be quite sure.

* * *

One scientist says there's a possibility the former pharmacist turned farmer, has actually found a new protein cell. Some other people think Brown is making money out of a hunk of cement.

* * *

At any rate Massachusetts is getting more publicity than at any time since the Sacco-Vanzetti case—or maybe even since the landing of the Mayflower.

Dave Boone Says:

IT'S MORE than a decade since communists were given the green light in America and those recent indictments by a federal grand jury in New York came after an inquiry that lasted more than a year. If they are Reds pledged to overthrow of our government nobody can say they weren't given plenty of time.

* * *

I see where Marshal Tito took from six to eight hours to make a speech replying to Moscow's charges that he hasn't been trying to get the ball over the plate. He says to Joe' "I'm innocent and you can take my million words for it."

I figure Stalin may forgive him providing he doesn't have to listen to a recording.

Things look a little more peaceful between Washington and Russia. It's just as well to hold the war between Truman and the reconvening congress first, I guess.

Summer Days

—By ANNE CAMPBELL

When you're heading into summer,
And the birds begin to sing,
Though you may be bowed with trouble,
Pretty soon it will take wing.
For there's something about sunshine
That keeps canceling your doubt.
When you're heading into summer,
There is lots of joy about.

When you're heading into summer,
Though there's winter in your heart,
You cannot help feeling hopeful
That a better world will start.
There is more sunshine than shadow
As a long life passes by.
That is what you learn when summer
Paints bright blue upon the sky!

Farmer's Diary

How a Boy Learns

By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE TRACTOR draw-bar broke when the second boy hauled manure. He hurried out to me, in the garden, "Come with me, in the car, to get it welded." I knew he wanted to drive, and was not in the least regretful to have an occasion. Only 13, he drives quite well, when I go along to explain about gears and safety rules and caution at intersections.

I often marvel at how fast boys learn machinery. To be a good driver, I think a boy should understand something of what goes on beneath the hood. And most boys do. Fathers are lucky who have a good safe youngster to take the wheel, when he is needed. So I try to let mine learn, on the tractor first, then on the family car, with me beside them.

We went to the blacksmith, who was busy—then to a welding shop. From somewhere, that boy has inherited the trait of asking questions about everything he sees. I saw him pick up a hot iron, at the blacksmith's, and drop it quick.

He followed every step of the welding process, helping when he was asked, and sometimes anticipating what would come next. He was learning—because he wanted to know. It's the best way. I kept quiet. I was inwardly delighted, by his eager questions.

Suppose a boy went to a place where work was going on and did not look around, or wonder, or ask questions! Suppose, on a warm summer day, you told him he could go swimming when the job was finished, and he shook his head, and would not go! Suppose you offered to play ball with him, and the game was so uninteresting that he turned away!

The daring youthful ways are valuable ways. The questioning spirit is a hopeful trait. Why should I fuss and fume because my tools are gone sometimes? Some small hand has tried his skill.

There is something healthy and virile about a row of spikes driven none too straight into the big barn beam. There's a ludicrous pride about a boy's first success in changing a tire. He has gained much more than a smudge on his face or a spot on his clothes. And so has his father.

Window Trimming Requires Imagination

Department store window trimming, which once was a lowly trade lacking both science and art, today has become a profession requiring skill and imagination.

The window displays which you admire in Mansfield store windows are the products of careful training and design. Stores no longer jam a window full of merchandise. Instead, stores attempt to reach a balance between sales appeal and eye appeal.

At O'Neil's, for example, a separate department is in charge of window display. It requires the full-time work of two people. In other Mansfield stores, the merchandise manager supervises window display.

With 14 large-size windows, O'Neil's has one of the largest trimming jobs in the city Jacque Hallman is display manager, and his assistant is Mrs Tony Carbetta Hallman not only must trim all outside windows, but also is in charge of interior decorations. Mrs. Carbetta assists in decorating work and also paints most of the sign work

"While we have no set schedule, generally we change window displays once a week," Hallman said "Each department notifies me what they want to 'push,' and I try to meet all requests insofar as possible"

"We try to keep the same type of goods in the various windows —as, for example, ladies' dresses are displayed on the Main street windows and furniture gets the key spot at the big window at the corner of Third and Walnut"

MODELS ARE COSTLY

Although stock merchandise—goods from store shelves—are used displays, window trimming can't be done cheaply A major item of expense are the plaster models on which clothes are draped

"A teen-age girl model costs at least $125, and a women's model costs upwards of $250," Hallman said. "Of course, you can pay lots more, too, some New York stores pay up to $500 for specially-designed models"

In Hallman s workshop, a small room cluttered with detached arms and legs of plaster models, paint pots, signs and dozens of other articles denoting his trade, he told how much planning is needed for some displays

"There are few people thinking of Christmas in this kind of weather, but I'm already ordering Christmas decorations and getting ideas for holiday layouts," he said.

"Our two busiest times are Christmas and Easter We plan for them months and months ahead Last week I was in Akron to consult with the display manager there for Christmas ideas"

Where does a display manager get his ideas? There are many sources, but generally they come from his own imagination or are variations of other people's ideas.

"And maybe sometimes I'll borrow or improve a display used by a store in another city," Hallman admitted.

Display window work has changed radically during the last 20 years, Hallman said For one thing, he said, more windows mean "less complex displays."

"The trend in toward simplicity of design We want to catch people's eye, and it has been found that a simple, striking design is more effective than a window filled with a variety of merchandise Some types of goods, of course, lend themselves more easily to this idea than others—it's hard, for example, to build a striking display around a frying pan'

'Ho-Hum' Season's Gone

Latins Discover Florida

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(AP)—This once was the ho hum season in south Florida—but not anymore.

Florida's Gold Coast is looking for a brisker summer trade than ever—not only from the states which furnish the winter tourist business but from the Latin American countries.

Rapidly, the Miami area is becoming a summer vacationland for the country's neighbors to the south.

With the influx of Spanish-speaking visitors, the language is virtually a "must" in stores, hotels and restaurants which cater to them.

The custom of hiring Spanish-speaking employes is growing. The little signs "Se Habla Espanol"—Spanish is spoken—are now found in nearly all shop windows.

Florida has been advertising its wares as a summer vacationland far and wide. Daytona Beach and other resorts to the north of West Palm Beach long have had their warm weather visitors. But not the Miami area.

Already, the plan to make the state a year-round resort is paying dividends.

One railroad man said "last summer our road carried more passengers to the greater Miami area than in any previous summer in its history except for troop movements during the war years."

Another said "the revenues each month last summer were greater than in any winter month prior to the war years."

This summer, 200 of Miami Beach's 339 hotels are remaining open. Many are on the ocean front.

Miami Beach hotel men estimate "budget-wise vacationists should be able to spend two weeks in Miami Beach this summer for $200 or less, including recreational activity expenses."

Miami Beach likes to refer to an average 81.4 degree summer temperature over the last 50 years.

Latin America travel has become a big item in the area since Clippers began spanning the Caribbean in a few hours. Havana and Nassau are only 90 minutes or less away, and other Latin America capitals but a few hours. There is steamship service to Havana.

So important is this business that the Miami Beach Hotel Owners association is inaugurating a series of Spanish classes for hotel help. Consuls will outline the background of their respective countries to the study groups.

The American Automobile association recently forecast the development of the Caribbean area as one of the greatest recreation centers for American travelers.

Campaign Teams Drawn Up

'Generals' Map Strategy For Fall Election

(EDITOR'S NOTE: With the world again facing an international crisis, America goes to the polls in November to elect a president and reshuffle its congressional representatives. Here are two stories about the chiefs of the Republican and Democratic election campaign committees, who will play leading roles in what promises to be a bitter fight.)

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An 11-man Democratic board of strategy will direct a Truman-Barkley election campaign which will cover "whistle-stops" as well as big towns in all parts of the country.

The board plans to have President Truman get around to see and talk to a lot of people. Mr. Truman has said he will put both himself and Congress on display "from one end of the country to the other."

Vice Presidential Candidate Alben W. Barkley, from Kentucky, is a member of the board. The 70-year-old Barkley, popular with Democrats in both the South and the North, is a seasoned campaigner who has been in Congress since the first inauguration of Woodrow Wilson.

M'GRATH

The Democratic board's personnel is heavily congressional. Four members are senators, two are from the House of Representatives, and the seventh is a longtime congressional employe and political expert.

The senators, besides Barkley, are J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, Scott Lucas of Illinois and Carl Hatch of New Mexico. The representatives are Sam Rayburn of Texas and John W. McCormack of Massachusetts.

The congressional employe is Leslie L. Biffle, secretary of the Senate minority policy committee, who has been on Capitol Hill for 40 years. Biffle has been called "President Truman's eyes and ears at the capitol."

On the strategy board also are three members of the President's [illegible] Charles G. Ross, his press secretary; Matthew Connelly, appointments secretary, and Clark M. Clifford, special counsel. The 11th strategist is Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security administrator.

The congressional tinge of the campaign board ties in with a major phase of the Democrats' fight to retain the presidency. That is to center their attack on the Republican-dominated Congress.

The Democrats will stress two big issues in the campaign—the Truman administration's efforts to secure world peace and its attempts to maintain security at home by controlling inflation.

Senator McGrath, Democratic national chairman and operating head of the strategy board, says "every housewife in America will be alerted to the failure of the Republican-led Congress to solve the No. 1 problem in the United States—the high cost of living."

Rep. Rayburn, like Barkley, was chosen a member of the strategy board for two reasons: his political "know-how" and his popularity with Democrats in the South, where threats of revolt against President Truman on the civil rights issue have been widespread.

Biffle has been a contact man between the White House and the Senate for many years. Biffle has the knack of being nice to everyone who talks to him and is popular with Republicans as well as Democrats.

By HENRY LEADER

ALBANY, N. Y.—(AP)—Four lawyers are running Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign for the presidency.

Three of them have worked as a team for several years in promoting the political fortunes of the Republican standard bearer. They are Herbert Brownell jr. of New York City, J. Russell Sprague of Mineola, Long Island, and Edwin F. Jaeckle of Buffalo.

The fourth, Rep. Hugh D. Scott jr. of Philadelphia joined the "backfield" of the veteran Dewey campaign team last month when he was elected chairman of the Republican national committee.

BROWNELL

Brownell is the quarterback. He calls the signals and directs the field drive for votes.

The extent to which Scott will participate in the drive to reach the Dewey goal—the White House—and the scope of his activities have not been determined specifically yet. As the national chairman, however, the Philadelphian will be entrusted with vital assignments.

"Coach" Dewey, of course, supervises overall strategy and has the final say on all major decisions. But he rates highly the proven political savvy of Brownell, Sprague and Jaeckle, and seldom clashes with any of them.

Brownell, a slender, affable, balding and urbane gentleman of 44, first tied up with Dewey in 1930 when both were young midwestern-bred lawyers seeking a foothold in New York City. Born in Nebraska, Brownell settled in Manhattan after graduating from Yale law school in 1927.

Dewey started up the political ladder as an assistant district Republican captain. In 1931 he persuaded Brownell to run for the assembly from Manhattan's 10th district, a Tammany stronghold, and acted as his campaign manager. Brownell lost, but ran again in 1932 and won, despite the first Roosevelt landslide. He was re-elected four times.

The two hooked up again in 1940 when Dewey was making his first bid for the GOP presidential nomination. In 1942 Brownell helped Dewey become New York's first Republican governor in nearly 20 years.

With Dewey back in the national limelight Brownell was a member of the triumvirate with Sprague and Jaeckle which worked successfully behind the scenes to gain Dewey the GOP presidential nomination in 1944 without the governor ever formally declaring his candidacy.

Dewey made Brownell national chairman. He resigned in 1946 and resumed law practice, but returned last year and, working with Sprague and Jaeckle, built up delegate support for the governor which smothered all opposition in Philadelphia last month.

At 61, Sprague is the oldest, but politically the most nimble of Dewey's "three musketeers." He has been a member of the GOP national committee for eight years and has developed a wide circle of friends who wield considerable influence in the party.

Unified Services Mark 1st Birthday

Army, Navy Sight Hard Task Ahead

Compromise Makes Merger Possible

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Defense Secretary James Forrestal says he never did think it would be easy to make the armed forces unification program work. And it hasn't been.

A year ago, on July 26, 1947, congress finally compromised on many long and bitter arguments and passed a law to provide for the army, navy and air force "authoritative coordination and unified direction under civilian control but not to merge them."

Each service was given co-equal status and granted the right of appeal to the president should any one of them disagree with the others. The National Military establishment (NME) was set up as directing agency over the army, navy and air force.

There have been two really major arguments between the services since the law became operative—and it was not the president but congress that settled them. Both involved the air force.

Forrestal, until then secretary of the navy, became secretary of defense on Sept. 17, 1947, he said then it would take several years for unification to work.

SPADEWORK SO FAR

What has been done in the last year has to a considerable degree been spadework. "Directing agencies" have been established under NME to carry out the details of unification, but a great deal of the effort has been planning what the agencies will do when the program really begins to roll.

There has been no saving in federal expenditures. This has surprised no one. It costs money to establish a brand new agency, and so far the cost of defense has increased. It is hoped savings may come later through central purchasing, etc.

Compromise has been the keynote since the very start. Indeed, Forrestal's appointment was itself a compromise.

Backing the unification demands of the air force and army against the hostility of the navy, President Truman finally won over the admirals by promising to appoint the navy secretary to head the unified establishment.

The policy of compromise has been followed into many details. If an air force general has been appointed director of an operating agency, for example, his deputy has been an army or navy man.

All business proceeds on beliefs, or judgments of probabilities, and not on certainties. — Charles W. Eliot.

'I Remember When . . . .'

Recalls Incident 85 Years Ago

By MARGUERITE MILLER

J. Edgar Willis lives in the house his father built, on the street named for his father over a half century ago.

Willis will be 89 Aug. 1 — the same age his father died, he recalls. He points with pride to the faded print on the wall and says: "That is my father, Urias Willis. I never heard of a man with that first name before."

"I remember when my father (the elder Willis was a resident of Ashland at the time) sent the first carload of stock on the first run of the Erie railroad through Mansfield.

"It was a carload of pigs that went to New York. I've got the receipt for the shipment — a big square receipt marked 'No. 1'.

"I took it down to the Erie office once and they were all excited about it," he chuckled. "They wanted to keep it, but I wouldn't give it up. So I let them send it to the New York office where they photostated it and sent the original back to me. That photostat hangs in the New York office of the railroad today.

"That must have been 84 or 85 years ago when my father sent that shipment. So many people have asked me when the first run on the Erie was made. I always figure the date from that shipment."

SPRY AND ACTIVE

The house he lives in at 81 North Willis avenue is the first house his father built when he came to Mansfield. Willis was a lad of 18 at the time.

Spry as a man many years his junior, Willis is both retired and active. His only retirement has been from the Mansfield post office, 24 years ago his next birthday. Since then he has traveled "all over Europe" and has "crossed the Pacific close to 30 times coming and going from Hawaii."

In between frequent trips to see his five children and their families, he finds his time completely taken by looking after his many rental properties, which he says he "inherited" from his two brothers and two sisters.

"None of them had any heirs to pass their estates on to so, being the only living one, I inherited the lot. It's a peculiar set-up."

Some of his fondest memories are connected with the post office and the years he spent there.

"I took my civil service examination for the postoffice in the Bushnell school building," he recalled. The school building is directly across the street from his present home.

100 TOOK EXAM

"More than 100 people took the examination for the one clerk position at that time. They filled up two rooms with applicants. But I got the highest grade."

He went to work as a post office clerk on his birthday, 57 years ago. For the last 20 years of his 33-year post office career, he was in charge of the money order department.

"When I went to work they started in clerks at $600 a year. The post office was at the present Sears-Roebuck location then. Then they moved it to the Masonic temple site and then to the Ohio Public Service location on South Park street.

"We never had a decent place for a post office until we got the new building at Fourth and Mulberry.

"I remember when Senator John Sherman used to come in the post office. He never came to Mansfield but what he didn't make the post office his headquarters," Willis continued.

"When Sherman died they brought him back here, closed up all the offices and had a big funeral."

The walls of Willis' cozy little apartment are lined with the pictures of his family and his five children and their families. Every one has a cherished place in Willis' heart, many of the prints being inscribed "To Daddy Willis."

Particularly proud is Willis of his son-in-law, James R. Young, International News Service Tokyo correspondent who wrote the best-seller, "Behind the Rising Sun."

Swiss Army Changes Set

BERN, Switzerland — (AP) — Switzerland, where neutrality is written into the constitution, is getting ready to fight in national defense.

Swiss Army Corps commandant Louis de Montmollin, who is chief of staff, told a recent news conference the staff did not anticipate a surprise attack on Switzerland by any great power. But, he continued, "we must continue to develop our information service so that at the moment when the first shots fram afar crash on our country our army must be ready to fight."

In fact, he said, a reorganization of the entire Swiss military setup was indispensable. What he had in mind, he explained, was a gradual process taking into account the new weapons. The ideal situation, he said, would be to go underground, literally, with all vital commodities, but no country could afford that.

De Montmollin warned the Swiss to be prepared for a revival of gas warfare, for a launching of bacteriological warfare, for atom bombs and rockets.

Fight Brews In Canada

King's Party Must Name New Leader

OTTAWA, Canada — (AP) — A fight that may shake Canada's very being is shaping over its leadership.

The National Liberal party convention meets here Aug. 5 to name a successor to Prime Minister William Lyon MacKenzie King. He plans to retire soon after more than 20 years in office.

A half dozen men are considered successors. The two most generally favored are Louis Stephen St. Laurent, suave, 66-year-old French-Canadian who is presently King's secretary of state for external affairs, and James Garfield Gardiner, 64, bellicose, western-born secretary for agriculture.

They are different as night and day. In their personal differences they represent many of the differences betwen Canada's east and west: Differences they will fight over politically at the drop of a hat.

St. Laurent, himself bi-lingual, comes from the big French-speaking province of Quebec. Urbane, of medium height, he was a successful corporation lawyer before King brought him into the cabinet in 1941. His interests thus were more the interests of Canada's relatively industralized east than of the farming west. Some of his opponents think this background is scarcely compatible with lieral party principles. St. Laurent belongs to the Catholic church.

Gardiner is a man of bantam aggressiveness, just under five feet five inches tall. His ancestors were Scots and he's proud of that. He was born on a farm and still runs one, although he's been in politics since 1914.

He resigned the premiership of Saskatchewan to come to Ottawa as King's secretary for agriculture in 1935. His principal support comes from the western farm bloc.

Critics of St. Laurent say he's too much a statesman and not enough of a politician for the prime minister's job. Critics of Gardiner say he's too much of a politician and not a smooth enough statesman to swing it.

Olivier's 'Hamlet' Emerges as Great Film

By JACK O'BRIAN

NEW YORK—(AP)—"Hamlet," probably the finest drama in the English language, has been turned into one of the best movies I have ever seen.

J. Arthur Rank and the Theater guild, which will sponsor the appearances of the Shakespearean movie in this country, invited a large group of professional Broadwayites, literary lions, movie and drama critics and publishing people to a private screening of the Bard's classic at the Winter Garden theater.

Laurence Olivier is starred, and had the mountainous job of adapting "Hamlet" to the screen. He did a little rearranging of the story for celluloid fluidity, edited out a few characters, notably Hamlet's friends Rosencranz and Guildenstern, and managed to reach the heady neighborhood of cinematic genius.

Color film was not used, since Olivier decided the brooding intensity of the tragedy demanded stark simplicity of black and white backgrounds. This was a touch of movie genius in itself. The settings, bleak and startling in their foggy magnificence, are scary enough of themselves. When the frightening Shakespearean story is set against them they take on a fierce intensity not quite encompassed on any stage of my memory.

Olivier the actor is superb. He again justifies the oft-repeated statement that he is the finest actor in the English-speaking theater. This coupling of the finest actor and the best drama in his native language indeed justifies Oliver's knighthood.

Jean Simmons, as Ophelia, takes second honors. She manages a difficult serious role with more classical aplomb than rightfully could be expected from a youngster of such callow experience.

Olivier's editing and literary scissoring effect a clear, lucid script, escaping all the pitfalls into which Shakespearean mishandling too frequently sinks. As the despairing prince, son of the murdered king who learns from his father's ghost that his mother's new husband is the murderer, Olivier presents a frightening picture of horror, tragic bitterness, terrible revenge, awful excitement.

He is the master at all times of the necessities of the script. He is handsome in his melancholy, regal in his moments of towering resentment, dashing and competent in his dueling scene, every bit the "Hamlet" Shakespeare devised. It is his own triumph, both as a collaborator with Shakespeare, as director, and star.

Food 'Pipeline' Process Opens Wonderous Vista To a Bright New World

BERKELEY, Calif.—(AP)—Imagine many big, transparent pipelines encircling a city.

Into the end of one of these, workers are pumping water and carbon dioxide. At various points along the line other workers are tapping spigots and taking out fats to make butter, gasoline, soap, oil and fuel gas enough to supply the city.

Think of a duplicate pipeline into which is being fed water, carbon dioxide and nitrates, and out of which are coming enough protein substances to feed the same city.

There might even be another pipeline, also fed with water and carbon dioxide, producing raw materials for the manufacture of sugar, starch, building materials and clothing.

This city needs no farms, railroads, ships or trucks to produce and deliver its food, clothing and fuel. There is no fear of drouth, famine or hunger; no worry about exhaustion of the petroleum supply; no apprehension about coal or gas for heating; no hungry, overpopulated nations to upset world equilibrium. Every community has its own inexhaustible supply of raw materials.

All this has become scientifically feasible, says Dr. Melvin Calvin, one of the top researchers in photosynthesis. By feasible, Dr. Calvin does not mean that it is practicable as yet. He means that scientists now see how it could be done.

Two groups of scientists finally have found the evidence. They have learned that tiny one-celled plants called algae can be conditioned to produce relatively large proportions of fat, protein or carbohydrate, at the will of the researcher.

Algae cause water to turn green after it stands in the sun for several days. They are nearly everywhere in water and soil. They are prodigious multipliers.

PROCESS DESCRIBED

The process by which they operate is called photosynthesis. It starts with chlorophyll, the stuff that makes algae and other plants green. Chlorophyll plus water carbon dioxide plus sunshine is the formula for sustaining life on earth. Without it there would be no plants and, of course, no animals.

At the Stanford university laboratories of the Carnegie institution of Washington, Dr. H. A. Spoehr and associates have raised algae having a fat content as high as 85 per cent of their weight. The fat looks and tastes like butter.

Ordinary algae are only five per cent fat. Perhaps 10 per cent of their weight is protein. The rest is carbohydrate and water. Dr. Spoehr's fat algae thus are remarkable plants.

These algae fit with startling effect into a picture of photosynthesis being pieced together in Dr. Calvin's laboratory at the University of California.

Dr. Calvin has found the photosynthesis process to be a sort of merry-go-round proposition in which the water and carbon dioxide are taken apart and recombined to make many different substances, one after the other, which go into the makeup of plant tissues.

This is different from scientists' early ideas. They thought the process produced only sugars, and that other parts of the plant system took the sugars and combined them with other compounds to make plant cells.

Dr. Calvin says photosynthesis produces fats and proteins as well as sugars. He has found several kinds of fatty acids and at least six kinds of amino acids. The amino acids are the building blocks of protein and there are at least 25 of them. Dr. Calvin believes he will find all of them before he finishes the job.

Dr. Calvin visualizes the photosynthesis machine as a doughnut having several pipes sticking out from its circumference.

The water and carbon dioxide enter one of these pipes. Chlorophyll already is present in the water in the form of algae or other plant life. The doughnut absorbs sunlight which starts the reaction. The raw materials circulate inside the doughnut, gradually changing from one substance to another. These substances may emerge from the doughnut, each from a different pipe.

From these findings and from Dr. Spoehr's work Dr. Calvin theorized that the process could be made to do the bidding of the scientist.

Dr. Spoehr made his algae fat by starving them of nitrogen and a few minor elements. This had the effect of blocking the process by which they made protein and carbohydrate.

Dr. Calvin reasoned that the same thing might be done to get different products from algae; that if given a heavy diet of nitrates they would produce an abnormal amount of protein. Or they might be made to produce heavy amounts of sugar and starch.

Here is where the pipelines come in—to become giant photosynthesis doughnuts for the community.

Killer Loses Love of Girl

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—An unidentified Jamestown girl today gave up a 14-day wait for her fiance, Robert Daniels, confessed triggerman in six Ohio slayings.

Police said the young woman, who told them she was engaged to the 24-year-old ex-convict, aided in identification of John C. West, Daniels' accomplice.

Police refused to reveal the name of Daniels' fiancee. They said he visited her here June 18, shortly before he and West went on their shooting spree. The young woman supplied authorities with a snapshot she said she took of him during the visit.

French Village In Hollywood Converted to Danish Retreat

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— At the end of a by-passed street in the center of Hollywood—within yelling distance of two large movie studios—is an incongruous jumble of French architecture known as the Normandy towers.

When it was built, this structure was the epitome of suburban luxuriousness. Great Garbo slept here. Charlie Chaplin slept here. Clara Bow slept here. Other notables slept here, too.

Normandy Towers was a retreat from the gaudy show that was Hollywood social life in those days. Although it covered scarcely an acre, one could get lost inside the place, patterned closely after a French village. Tiny winding stairs and narrow halls leading to heaven knows where, were admirably designed to frustrate peddlers and autograph seekers.

Then Hollywood went commercial. Movie notables fled to the hills.

Now, although the place is still filled with residents, another change is on the way. The changes are that it again will become one of the sights of Hollywood—but you couldn't sleep in one of its beds for $100 an hour. That is, unless you happen to be a visiting Dane.

Last December, a new owner appeared. He is Kaj Seidler, a native of Denmark, who not many years ago was peddling papers on the sidewalks of Hollywood.

Kaj (rhymes with sky) already has begun converting the Normandy towers into a typical Danish village. When rent controls are lifted and he can do with the places as he wishes, the remodeled apartments will be reserved for the exclusive use of Danish artists, actors and businessmen who visit Los Angeles.

Kaj is a member of the Danish King guards. The president of the California chapter is opera and movie singer Lauritz Melchior. Various Danish organizations will make their headquarters here.

The Handicapped Can Have Fun, Too

Blind Class Spends a Week at Lake Erie

By NITA BRANSON

Members of the blind class at the Mansfield Salvation Army demonstrated last week that physically handicapped persons can have fun.

Nine members of this class were taken on a seven-day outing to Bert's Villa along Lake Erie by Major and Mrs. William Jones, commanders of the Army post here. It began Sunday morning when the big bus pulled up in front of the headquarters on South Main street and continued through a week of sunshine and fair weather to late Saturday afternoon.

In spite of eyes that are dim and hearing that, in the case of several of the class members, is almost totally gone, all had fun. It wasn't the "sit and twiddle your thumb" kind, and barbecue picnics that are a "must" on most family calendars for the summer.

The nine had a "grand" time because they helped each other. Those who are blind only slightly lent their better sight to the ones totally blind. Those who could hear lent their ears to the ones who will never hear again.

And back of all the generous co-operation on the part of the members is the fine and cordial spirit of Major and Mrs. Jones, who gave every minute of their time to see that there was something planned for every hour of the day.

Paul Carson, who helps eke out a living by recaning chairs and who is totally blind and deaf, became by the end of the week the "champion" croquet player.

Carson's wife, herself partially blind and almost totally deaf, is nevertheless his eyes and ears. She is an expert at lip reading and translates for her husband whatever goes on.

It is heart-warming to watch Carson, his hands over those of his wife, sit intently "listening" while she signs for him the scripture passage, for instance, which Major Jones reads at the close of each meal.

Or there is "Bill" Mutersbaugh, 76, totally blind and without his ear trumpet, totally deaf, who went fishing with the keenest enjoyment, helped down the dozens of steep steps to the shore of Lake Erie by his less handicapped companions.

Mutersbaugh, a resident of Shelby, is a former carpenter who was able to live comfortably until one day suddenly something slipped over his eyes like a curtain and he has not been able to see since. But Mutersbaugh, like Carson, has a devoted wife, who lends her fine eyes and her normal hearing to his service.

"Bill," as everyone calls him, was one of the most friendly, cooperative persons in the whole group. When he wasn't fishing, he sat at the radio and listened to the ball games.

When Major Jones introduced Annabelle Derry, he said "Annabelle is one of the two in the class who works."

"Yes," she said, "I work on the toaster assembly line at the Westinghouse, winding elements." Her husband is a group leader there.

Mrs. Derry, who has been married 18 years, is young-looking with dark hair and eyes, and sightless in her left eye.

One of the most remarkable women of the group is Mrs. Charles Ward, who, totally blind, does all her own housework, even cooking. In addition she helps Mrs. Jones, "but they take care of her husband, who is partially blind, tend their garden assisted by their son, Tom.

Others in the group were Mrs. Alice Lemley, wife of Jimmy Lemley, who has the stand in the courthouse; Fred Wolf, who became champion horseshoe pitcher during the week, and George Kling, who, although partially sightless, was a great help to Mutersbaugh.

Even in eating, the nine exhibited an uncanny ability to find their food and convey it to their mouths without much trouble.

"We butter their bread," said the rest and do it quite nicely, too."

All meals at the camp for the week were planned by Mrs. Jones and cooked with the assistance of her daughter, Mrs. David McColgan of Akron, and Mrs. Laura Dillon, who has been a volunteer worker in the Army for the past 31 years.

"They've been a fine bunch this week," Major Jones said. "There hasn't been a gripe or one word of complaint and that's more, sometimes, that you can say about normal people."

"We are trying" he concluded, "to expand their life horizon. There is need for a lot of research, but we are trying to find out what can be done to extend their world from their small, dark outlook to the place where they can live almost normal, happy lives."

Cattleman Hits Claim Of Texas

ANACONDA, Mont.—(AP)—Jack C. O'Toole, Shelby cattleman and Montana booster extraordinary, insists his state is the nation's largest, instead of being third largest as the books say.

Here's the way he argues:

"Many persons have the idea that Texas is the biggest state in the union. They arrive at this conclusion because of two reasons: First, Texans have been preaching that propaganda for years. Second, people haven't stopped to think that much of Montana is standing on end."

"Iron out the Rockies, and Montana would exceed any other state in size."

Toastmasters File Charter

The Toastmasters International club headquarters, Santa Ana, Calif., has announced receipt of a charter application from the newly-organized Mansfield Toastmasters club.

The International group, composed of 639 clubs in the United States and Canada, congratulated the new club, which was initiated by the Mansfield YMCA, a Red Feather agency.

The club now has a membership of 26 men, who will meet ten days after the new chapter is officially adopted by the international organization.

Turhan Bey Admits—

He Loves To Be In Love

By HOWARD C. HEYN

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Turhan Bey admits he just loves to be in love. But he thinks Americans need a few lessons.

The suave and single Mr. Bey, born in Vienna of Turkish-Czech parentage, prefers the European approach. He's as adept at hand kissing as any actor in Hollywood.

An American boy in love, he says, is apt to convey his feelings with such expressions as "How's chances kid?" or "Wanna tear a herring?" These will never replace the adjectives with which Bey's heart bubbles. He's an avowed advocate of the darling-sweetheart-gorgeous creature school.

"If I have a philosophy at all," he declared on the "Song of India" set, "it is to be always in love with someone, and never to regret it, whatever the outcome.

"Love is fragile," he declaimed, waving expressive hands, "and very mortal. Often it comes to an end. This is to be regretted, but it is not a matter of continuing moment."

The American boy and girl, he asserted, hide their inmost feelings, go about as if they didn't care if they ever fell in love, and, when they do, use the most commonplace language to express it. Often they make a tragedy of the fact if it doesn't last.

"How much better off is the European, who of course fulfills the necessary period of mourning between loves, but for whom the 'torch,' as Americans call it, is almost unknown," Bey orated. "He knows there is always another love, often a better one. But if not, why cry about it?"

This is a favored topic with Bey, who has squired such movie lovelies as Lana Turner and Yvonne De Carlo. Just a year ago he said:

"I've never met a girl I'd want to marry. I'm not against marriage, but with movie dolls how can you tell if they're really in love with you? When they profess passionate affection you realize they're repeating lines from their last picture. Hollywood women's don't stay married."

Five Area Men Enlist In Navy

The enlistment of five area men for service in the U. S. Navy was announced Saturday by the Mansfield recruiting station.

The area men who will report to Great Lakes Naval Training Center for recruit training are Jack R. Williams, 399 Bowman street; Kenneth A. Reed, Bucyrus; Richard D. Eichler, Galion and Junior Allen Rhinebolt, Shelby.

Harold E. Williams, Bucyrus, a veteran of three years service during World War II, re-enlisted as seaman first class and will report to Washington, D. C., for classification and assignment.

Walter White Says—

Special Session Offers GOP Golden Opportunity

The wails of anguish from Dixiecrat, Republican and third party leaders over President Truman's order to Congress to reconvene on July 26 may be a barometer of the effectiveness of his action. It is no secret that many Republican leaders, despite the rosiness of the outlook for victory in November, have been having a nice case of the jitters because they feared Congress would be called back before election day. Even more apprehensive have been the Southerners.

The cries of "politics" from G. O. P. are being greeted with not-so-polite snickers by a great many voters who are caught in the tightening vise of mounting prices, housing shortages and other acute discomforts about which the 80th Congress did nothing. Instead of being put on the spot by being called back to Washington to do something about the pledges made at Philadelphia, the Republicans would be wise to realize that they have a golden opportunity as well as a responsibility to prove that their platform is genuinely meant to be fulfilled. Truman took a calculated risk in his call to reconvene. He surely knew that the G.O.P. which controls both houses of Congress could make itself virtually unbeatable by buckling down to business and passing legislation which the people need and which the Republicans have promised. It remains to be seen if the Republicans have this kind of courage and wisdom.

WHITE

They need also to wake up to the fact that probes and investigations which some of their leaders have threatened in their anger may prove to be as dangerous for them as for the Democrats. For example, an enquiry into the method that was used by certain Republicans to kill quietly the resolution to oust Rankin from his seat in the House of Representatives might make embarrassing reading.

So too would a revelation of the details of the deal to jam through the House and Senate the regional compact bill which was designed to circumvent the Supreme court's decision against educational discrimination. Or the activities of the real-estate lobby in its opposition to housing legislation, or the power lobby in its effort to seize control of public power projects. A number of presently shining reputations in both parties might be far less brilliant and pure if the facts become known.

Even more vulnerable are the Southern Democrats which may help to explain the threat of Senator Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina to move adjournment of the new session as soon as it convenes. Such a motion is not debatable. Support of Johnston's motion by either Republican or Northern Democratic Senators would be political suicide since it would demonstrate either fear or unwillingness to stay in Washington to do something concrete about prices, housing, or civil rights.

It might also be revealing and exciting to find out officially how many of the "rebels" at Birmingham who nominated J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Fielding Wright as president and vice president, are members of the Ku Klux Klan or are fellow-travelers of that and other subversive organizations. J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey can render a notable service to his Republican party by utilizing the machinery of the un-American Activities committee to find this out if John E. Rankin will permit him to make a sincere investigation.

A number of normally well-informed political commentators have taken at face value some of the claims made by the Dixiecrats as to the votes they will take away from the Truman-Barkley ticket. There is one exceedingly important fact they overlook. Today there are more than one million Negro voters in the South, thanks to the determined fight against disfranchisement, which Negroes themselves have made.

These new million voters may conceivably counter-balance the embittered and frustrated followers of Thurmond and Wright who have been as vicious in their race-baiting as the late and unlamented Bilbo. Any course of action recommended by southerners like Thurmond and Wright will automatically impel not only these Negro voters but decent white southerners to vote the direct opposite course.

Come to think of it, the most effective vote-making for Truman may turn out to be by those who hate him most because in his unpretentious Missouri fashion he has had the courage to challenge the bigots. Not only will this be true of Negroes but of a lot of other decent Americans too.

Fliers Capture Rustlers, Save Lives

Aero Squadron Patrols Nevada Badland

LAS VEGAS, Nev.—(AP)—Two nine-year-old youngsters played with a golf club in a vacant lot.

One swung the club, accidentally struck the other in the head, fracturing his skull. It was a dangerous injury, needing the attention of a specialist in Los Angeles.

Within an hour, the youngster was on board a plane in the service of the Aero squadron of Sheriff Glen Jones. Two hours later he was on an operating table in a Los Angeles hospital. He lived.

This was just a routine incident for the newly formed Aero squadron, which patrols 8,027 square miles of some of the most desolate territory in the United States.

Organized under the leadership of Deputy Sheriff John V. Lytle, a pilot owning an AT6 training monoplane, the squadron has been called out to deliver several injured persons for emergency operations at distant points.

Its planes have gone into barren, unmapped valleys in search of rustlers; others have scouted highways for hitch-hikers who robbed a motorist and took his car; still others, manned by experienced observers, have sought lost people who have wandered onto the desert.

Deputies have flown hundreds of miles looking for planes downed far from food, water and shelter.

29 AIRCRAFT AVAILABLE

The 47-member, 29 aircraft squadron has available the entire personnel of a complete intrastate airline, including two DC-3 transport planes, on call at any time for any emergency. The transport company is Bonanza Air lines, operating between Las Vegas and Reno, and headed by civic-minded Edmund Converse.

In addition to Bonanza, the squadron membership includes operators of two airports, one at Boulder City and the other, Sky Haven, located near Las Vegas. C. A. "Al" Lefevre, veteran CAA inspector at Boulder City, is technical adviser.

Formed in March by Lytle, members have surveyed the entire county, which comprises all of the "V"-shaped portion of southern Nevada. Several emergency runways have been graded at heretofore inaccessible desert points.

Recently, rustlers were reported at work in the Pahrump and Sandy valleys and at Searchlight. A "rustler patrol" headed by Lytle so harried the cattle thieves that one came out into the open and made a misstep. He now faces trial, and Sheriff Jones is closing in on a ring which may turn out to have a dozen members.

Shortly after the squadron was formed, a patrol was sent to St. George, Utah, to scout for a plane which was believed to have crashed with the scion of a prominent Arizona family and his passenger aboard. The wreck was sighted almost simultaneously by an airline pilot and squadron members.

Previous to this, two men who had crashed just short of the ledge of the Potosi mountains were found by planes after wandering aimlessly in the desert wastes, one for almost two days.

When a three-year-old child wandered away from its parents, caretakers of an isolated railroad station several miles from Henderson, Nevada, four airplanes were up within an hour. The child was located before nightfall.

When Deputy Sheriffs A. H. Kennedy and W. E. Leypoldt flew to Nevada City, California, to testify at a murder trial, a sheriff's deputy-pilot flew them; when Sheriff Jones flew to Reno to bring back a bank embezzler and question him about his partner, the sheriff's squadron flew him. Both men pleaded guilty and are now in Nevada State penitentiary.

Two low fliers have been apprehended and each fined $250 under Nevada's 1947 aviation statutes. Safe and sane flying deputy sheriffs testified at both trials.

Jones, gratified by the performance of his unpaid but fully commissioned deputies—it actually costs them $13 per year to belong to the squadron—says that the day of the horse has gone and that of the patrol car is on its way out.

"For the vast distances which we have to patrol, and the jobs we have to do, there is nothing like the airplane, coupled with radio," he says. "One plane is worth fifty thousand horses when you have to go places in this country."

Somersault Saves Woman

NEW YORK Mrs. Ida Deskin, 63, slipped while washing the outside of a window of her fourth floor apartment.

Her son, Samuel, 18, grabbed her feet but didn't have the strength to pull the screaming woman back through the window. A crowd of 2,000 persons gathered in the street below but no one knew what to do.

Fifteen minutes later Frank Zopash, 49, apartment house superintendent, grabbed Mrs. Deskin's arms from a third story window directly beneath her. The exhausted Samuel let go and Mrs. Deskin turned a neat somersault into the window below with Zopash's aid. Then she fainted.

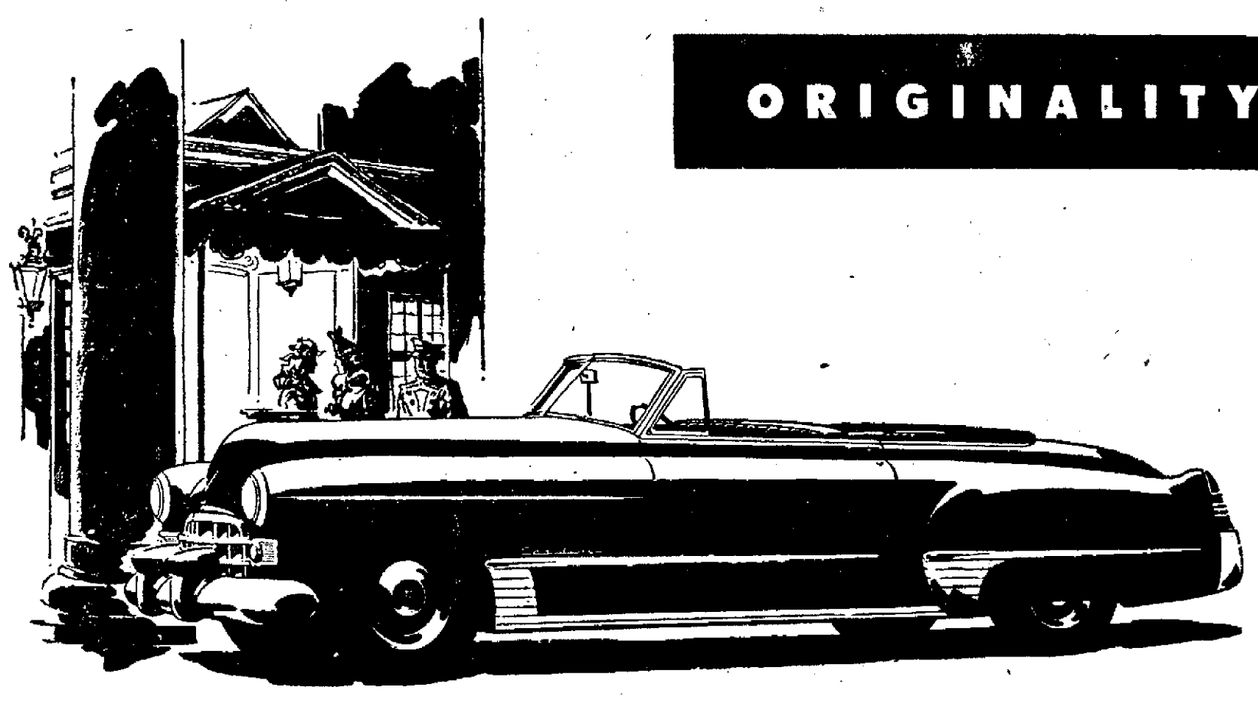
Cadillac

ORIGINALITY



Originality is a basic Cadillac word. For Cadillac is always the pioneer—striving constantly to endow its cars with a greater measure of all that is good and desirable in an automobile.

But the new Cadillac cars now gracing the streets and highways have reached a degree of originality that is unusual even for Cadillac. You notice this first in their smart and distinctive appearance. And you notice it again when you take the wheel—for here is performance so incomparable that there is literally nothing with which to compare it.

The public reaction is what you would logically expect. Orders for new Cadillac cars are breaking all records in Cadillac's long and impressive history of public acceptance.

Babies Behind Bars

What Happens to Children Born In Jail?

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY, AP Newsfeatures Writer

CHICAGO—Hundreds of children have been born in a strange, obscure world.

They are the infants of women inmates of penal and correctional institutions. Many of them could, in fact, be called "prison babies." But most of them first saw the light of day outside the walls.

This has been a virtually unknown chapter in the story of life behind the bars. But now the information has been gathered by the John Howard association, a private agency that seeks to rehabilitate released prisoners, improve prisons and present crime.

Questionnaires were sent out to get the answers to such questions as these: How many such babies are born? How long can the mother keep them? Can mothers, when freed, regain their little ones?

The survey covered 65 state penitentiaries, women's reformatories and girls' training schools in 39 states, the District of Columbia and Hawaii.

The study showed 326 babies were born last year to inmates of 31 institutions. The women were pregnant when they were imprisoned. Some had husbands. Some were single.

The babies were delivered in prison hospitals in only eight of the institutions. In the other cases the births were in state, county, city or private hospitals.

RECORD 'BLOT' AVOIDED

Officials use a variety of means to avoid leaving a blot on the child's formal record in reporting the place and circumstances of his birth.

This is done in filling out the birth certificate. The most common methods in cases of infants born off the grounds are these: The certificate just lists the name of the hospital and city. Or only the name of the city or county.

Pains are taken to omit a blemish even when the babies are born inside the fence. Four institutions merely list the name of the city. One records only the street address of the institution. Three give the names of the prison hospitals—but there is nothing in these names that show their nature.

Take, for instance, the State Reformatory for Women at Dwight, Ill. The point of origin of children born there is put down as "Florence Nightingale hospital, Dwight, Ill."

But illegitimate youngsters don't have such a good chance to escape a stigma. The birth certificates bear a stamp of "illegitimate" in a dozen states. Only the mother's name is given in Washington, D. C., Indiana and Massachusetts. The names of the father and mother (and they don't jibe) are listed in Rhode Island. A notation "father unknown" is made in three states.

How long does a child remain with a mother?

There are many answers. Let's look first at training schools. The inmates are minor girls. In seven places they can have their babies as long as they are in the hospital. The period ranges from two weeks to three months in others. In one school the mother never sees the child. In two others the babies are taken away at birth if they are to be adopted.

'The Tiger' Ruled New York For Century

Tammany May Be Down, But It's Not Out

By SAUL PETT, AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK—Time was when a Democratic mayor of New York would sooner take a salary cut than talk back to Tammany Hall.

But Democrat William O'Dwyer is now in the middle of a full-scale slugfest with the tiger. He has threatened to build his own political organization. He's told Tammany to stay in the "gutter."

Tammany power may have wilted in the last 15 years, but that's still tough, and perhaps dangerous, talk to be using against the nation's oldest political organization—an organization which can remind rebels like O'Dwyer that for more than a century it ruled New York City, with only a few brief interruptions, and played a heavy hand in state and national politics.

MAYOR O'DWYER
. . . Twists Tiger's Tail

This record of power evidently hasn't fazed the mayor, the first Democrat in city hall since 1933. He disagreed with Tammany over its choice for the patronage-rich post of New York county surrogate, and told the "scavengers" to lay off.

The tiger, which only recently began to take on weight again after 12 years of famine under late Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, ripped right back at O'Dwyer. Frank J. Sampson, an O'Dwyer man, was replaced by Manhattan Borough President Hugo E. Rogers as leader of the hall.

Tammany has been consigned to the gutter or rubbish heap before. It has always bounced back up again. The latest comeback, in the wake of the tide of reform which began with the Seabury investigation and LaGuardia, has been the hardest.

In 1873, Tammany became a world-wide symbol for wholesale political corruption when William Marcy "Boss" Tweed was sent to the clink for robbing the city of an estimated $40,000,000. But three years later Tammany was back in power.

REGAINS POWER

In 1901, Tammany Leader Richard Croker, threatened with prosecution, left the country for Ireland with all his properties. Seth Low, a reform mayor, came in but lasted only two years.

Even after the "tin box" investigation which brought Jimmy Walker's resignation under pressure from Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Tammany rode back to power. In a special election it put John P. O'Brien in city hall with a record-breaking one million votes. O'Brien served the remaining year of Walker's term and then was licked by LaGuardia.

The causes of Tammany's decline since then are various. Some believe it never really recovered from the "tin box" probe. Others attribute the slump to population shifts which made Brooklyn and the Bronx more important politically than the borough of Manhattan, Tammany's bailiwick.

For purposes of definition, Tammany hall now is more a state of mind than a hall. In fact it no longer has a hall. Two organizations bear the name. There is Tammany hall, the political organization, which occupies a suite of offices in mid-Manhattan. Down a few blocks on the same street is the Society of Tammany, a fraternal and benevolent organization.

In its early days after the American revolution, Tammany made its home in various taverns. As it prospered, it began to go in for big buildings. These used to be leased to the New York County Democratic committee, traditionally another name for Tammany. The last such grand structure, a $950,000 job built during the Walker regime, was sold in 1943.

The New York Tammany dates from 1786. Now, as in its early days, the society still abounds in Indian ceremony and titles. Meetings are called council fires. The calumet, or peace pipe, is given a place in the councils. The whole works is run by thirteen sachems, who choose the big fellow, the grand sachem.

Public criticism over the entrance of a private society into politics brought a change. In 1805, the society incorporated as benevolent and fraternal order. Tammany hall apparently was created as a separate political organization but actually the leaders of the two groups were either the same men or very chummy.

The hall reached its greatest power in the middle of the 19th century, when the floor tide of immigrants, especially Irish, poured into New York. Unlike other political groups, Tammany welcomed the immigrants, speeded up their naturalization, helped them get located.

Republican opponents could charge corruption, and sometimes prove it, but the real source of Tammany power was being solidified all the time—in the tenement districts. There the tiger district leaders did their most effective work.

River Parley At Belgrade Seen 'Rough'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Diplomats of the Western world probably will be in for a rough session when they meet the Russian orbit delegates next Friday to try to agree on how to reestablish free navigation on the Danube river.

For one thing, they will be outnumbered for the first time in a major post-war conference when they assemble in Belgrade, Yugaslavia.

The line-up: The United States, France and Great Britain versus the Soviet Union, the Ukrainian S.S.R., Bulgaria, Romania, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Austria will sit in as observer.

Secondly, Russia apparently now has everything her own way in the lower Danube basin, with the river tightly closed.

The Danube is the chief means of travel and transport in that part of Europe, where highways and railroads are sketchy at best. It would mean an enormous advantage to the western democracies to restore normal trade and cultural contacts with the Danubian states behind the iron curtain.

Many observers here were astonisbed that Russia even considered joining in the Belgrade talks. What can she gain by it?

POSSIBILITIES LISTED

There are various possibilities:

1. She may be badly squeezed in her barter treaties with the Danubian satellites, which give her raw materials in exchange for fabricated goods.

Ruscsia is notoriously short of industrial products and cannot comfortably export any of them. The Danubian states used to get a large portion of their industrial goods from Germany in the river trade, exchanging grain, oil, minerals and lumber. Perhaps they are pressing now for a nourishing slice of the old east-west commerce.

2. Russia may be showing willingness to help her satellites. If the conference is stalemated, she might at least say that she had proved that trade with the west was not feasible.

3. Russia by now has so thoroughly sewed up all commercial operations in the area that she may feel the western powers could not trade profitably there and thus could make no inroads.

4. Russia did of course have a diplomatic obligation to hold this conference. In the peace treaties with Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania she agreed to the principle of free navigation on the Danube. And in a resolution of the Council of Foreign Ministers in December 1946 she agreed to confer on reestablishing an international river regime.

There is no law now against outsiders trading on the Danube, but as a practical matter no non-communist states can do so. The Russians do not allow western vessels to sail below Linz, Austria, so the Americans have forbidden the Russians to go above there.

Vessels of non-Danubian nations immobilized on the river ever since the start of the war, are not specifically prohibited from operating. But they have found it impossible to do so because of "technicalities."

What would the opening of the Danube mean to us?

It would be of no direct commercial advantage. The United States has never carried on much trade in that area.

The chief reason our government is interested is to prevent the Danubian states from being wholly absorbed in the Russian orbit. Officials say a lot of people in those countries dream of the day when they can trade the way they used to and conduct their own affairs.

At Belgrade we can state our purposes, show our friendly interest in them, and even if the conference fails we shall have had a sounding board for America's democratic message.

$55,000 Contest Underway

Glamorous Style Sought

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK—(AP)—A world wide hunt is on for heirs to the craftsman's mantle worn by Chippendale, Sheraton, Hepplewhite and Phyfe.

New York City's Museum of Modern Art is the sponsor of a $55,000 international competition for the development of well-designed furniture for modern homes and (here's the catch) within the range of $4,000 a year incomes.

The competition is backed by manufacturers and retailers all over the country.

The furniture business needs glamorizing," explains Harry Fish, president of the museum project and head of American Furniture associates. "We need furniture which can be produced on a mass basis for the middle income bracket.

"No new Chippendale has come along—no one has come along for generations—with furniture which can be copied for the masses to buy."

Frankly, Fish confessed, furniture has not been capturing enough of the income in that big middle bracket market.

"People haven't refurnished their homes as often as the industry thinks they should. In the old days the idea was lifetime furniture, with massive pieces all keyed to large rooms.

"That's not the conception now. Homes have changed, rooms are smaller, ceilings are lower. There are different needs in furniture for young people, middle-aged people and older people. Furniture today should be scaled."

Fish said that the general trend —which the industry expects to pour $40,000,000,000 into new homes within the next 10 years—definitely is toward modern furniture.

"It's coming from the west coast," he said. "In developing modern furniture, the emphasis is in warm climates where there is freedom in the use of colors. As the trend moves toward the east —and colder climates—the reception becomes mixed. Lots of this modern is unsuitable, too flamboyant and not suited to the surroundings."

He said that attempts have been made to combine modern with "traditional" or period furniture.

"It can be done beautifully," he said, "but it is difficult."

Nevertheless, Fish maintains, "functional modern" is the trend of the future in furniture.

"It's no fad," he emphasized. "In the small to average-sized room it's posssible to work out many combinations with it. It's practical and its good to look at —when it's well done. Of course, lots of what has been done has been bad."

The whole furniture business, he said, has been in a state of rapid transition. During the war when practically everything was scarce, people were buying what furniture was available as fast as they could —and paying cash. Now they are buying it on credit. The cash is going into toasters and washing machines.

"There is lots of good furniture being made today," Fish said, "but the good stuff costs too much for the average income."

With four months to go before the competition closes, almost 1,200 entries have been received—463 of them from 31 foreign countries.

"We hope we have something in this that will revolutionize the industry," he commented.

Organizations Spreading Rapidly

'Junior Cops' Slash Juvenile Delinquency

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY, AP Newsfeatures Writer

CHICAGO—Little cops are swinging a big stick at juvenile delinquency.

They are known by a variety of names—such as junior policemen and junior deputy sheriffs. They are lads who range in age from ten to 18. They have been organized in many cities.

They are getting results. Look at the record in Mattoon, Ill. It shows that 405 youths were taken into custody there in one year. Then the junior police force was formed. The next year only 13 youngsters were arrested.

Action is taking the place of talk at many points on the juvenile delinquency front. The idea of putting a large part of the problem in the hands of juveniles has spread rapidly in the last two years. Officials estimate more than 250,000 have joined the groups of cub lawmen so far. The number is growing.

Kid cops serve as traffic guards near schools, patrol playgrounds, help guide crowds at parades and scenes of accidents, hunt lost children, keep hoodlums within bounds on Halloween, take part in all kinds of sports.

But the main aim is crime prevention. The young officers learn to keep out of trouble themselves and seek to keep others out of trouble, too.

The National Sheriffs association tells how the plan works in Junior Deputy Sheriffs leagues. It goes like this:

A sheriff calls in the kids. He tells them his job is to crack down on crime. He wants the youngsters to help him. He puts across the idea that he is their friend—not a bogeyman.

LADS SIGN PLEDGE

The youths look around the office. They see the rogues gallery. They read case histories. Some make it clear the criminal is shoveling coal in prison now because he took a wrong turn as a boy. The sprouts inspect the jail —a dreary place, at best. They hear a court trial.

When the lads sign up for the league, they pledge to uphold the law and set a good example. They get identification cards and badges; receive instruction in traffic safety and first aid.

Charles J. Hahn, executive secretary of the association, estimates 400 leagues with a total of 250,000 members are functioning.

"Every report a sheriff has made to us on counties in which leagues have been organized indicates a marked decrease in delinquency," he says.

Such reports have come from sheriffs at Yuma, Ariz.; Ventura, Calif.; Lynchburg, Tenn.; Seattle, Wash.; Lewiston, Ida., and other places. There are at least 20 junior police forces. Two of them in Illinois—at Harrisburg and Matoon—have earned wide notice.

Police Chief Edward H. Davidson established the junior cops in Mattoon late in 1946. There are 745 of them now.

The city is pleased and proud. Businessmen chip in to rent buses to take the boys to big league ball games in St. Louis and Chicago. Churches treat them to picnics and parties.

Eddie Wise, father of six sons and a daughter, founded the Harrisburg force. He watched the ranks grow to more than 300 lads.

Wise figured there should be a clearing house for the exchange of information among scattered bands of young lawmen. So he organized the National Association of Junior Police. He is the executive secretary.

"Letters from all over the country are proof that an intense interest has been aroused," Wise says. "Although we have only approximately a dozen JP units as actual member-units to date, there are between 100 and 200 cities and towns that are making plans to become affiliated with the national association.

"We now are striving to establish 10,000 junior police forces in America, with a membership of more than 2,000,000 boys."

Truman Busy On Message

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Top idea men of the New Deal were back at work for the White House today, fashioning the "high price" blast President Truman will put on Congress Tuesday.

The President himself mulled over a rough draft of his message to the special session while he sailed leisurely along the Potomac river. He was joined later Saturday aboard the White House yacht, U. S. S. Williamsburg, by a group of his advisers.

Two of the recent New Deal recruits for the Truman idea factory were Paul A. Porter, former OPA administrator and 1944 publicity chief for the Democratic party, and Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, longtime "ghost writer" for the late President Roosevelt.

Brush Fires Peril Homes

Thousands of homes in isolated sections throughout the United States are subject to a fire hazard not present in city dwellings the danger of grass and brush fires.

More than 200,000 fires of this type cost the United States $83,000,000 a year; but far more serious than this enormous loss of national resources is that flying sparks from these fires ignite an uncounted number of rural residences and kill hundreds of persons.

Summer homes usually are of frame construction and remote from fire-fighting equipment. When sparks hit the wood siding or shingles the houses are quickly destroyed, often with loss of life, because the flames spread rapidly.

Much of this danger can be eliminated, it is pointed out by the Construction Research Bureau of New York, clearing house for building information, by insulating summer homes with fireproof mineral wool.

Havana has 33 radio stations, more than any other city in the world.

U. S. to Issue Youth Stamp

A three-cent salute-to-youth commemorative stamp will be issued through the Washington, D. C., post office Aug. 11, Acting Postmaster Curtis Ford announced Saturday.

The stamp, printed in blue and arranged horizontally, is in honor of the youth of America.

The central design shows a boy and girl walking in step, carrying books. To the right is a dark shield on which is a light panel with the wording "Youth Month, Sept. 1-30, 1948" in dark Gothic. Below this are five stars.

The wording, "Saluting Young America" and "United States Postage" in the same style is printed across the top and bottom of the stamp, respectively.

The denomination, "3c" is printed in white Gothic in each lower corner on a dark circular background.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send not more than 10 addressed envelopes to the Postmaster, Washington, D. C. A postal note or money order should be enclosed to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

New Lighting Ideas Used In Modern Home

Electric lighting engineers have kept pace with new trends in home building and today lighting fixtures are available to augment any architectural plan or decorative scheme.

One of the newer developments is a fixture which combines direct incandescent illumination and indirect fluorescent lighting. This fills a long-standing need in dining-rooms. A reflector centers incandescent rays on the table and the fluorescent tubes flood the room with light. The idea also is used in kitchens.

Fluorescent-lighted bookcases and china cupboards create novel and dramatic effects. Vertical tubes mounted behind moldings on the face of bookcases are coming into use, while tubes in the tops of china cabinets, equipped with glass shelves, shed light through the whole interior. This effectively sets off collections of fine china and glass.

Tailor-Made Headaches Help to Solve Real Ones

ROCHESTER, Minn.—(AP)—Tailor-made headaches—induced in patients to simulate natural attacks—are helping doctors gain some headway against one of medicine's commonest, but toughest problems.

Doctors produce such "provocative" headaches by methods ranging from the use of certain chemicals to a generous swig of ice water. Sometimes a headache can be induced by having a patient lift a heavy suitcase.

The idea is this:

Patients often visit a doctor when they are free of the head pain that may have plagued them at regular intervals for years. Some can give a good enough history and analysis of the pain so the doctor can make a direct attack. Others can't.

To attempt treatment, the doctor has to know the location and character of the natural pain. As Dr. Bayard T. Horton of the Mayo clinic, who conducts headache research at St. Mary's hospital, said in a recent report, the complexity of the human headache "may be staggering at times and its variety is almost overwhelming."

So researchers here and at other places produce headaches of one or more varieties until they match the discomfort the patient feels during a natural attack.

Then they try various drugs to combat this tailor-made attack, and sometimes succeed. The substance that cut short the induced attack is recommended against the natural attack, and here again there have been successes.

TYPES ARE LISTED

Among the various types of headaches are:

1. Histaminic cephalgia, one of the severest forms. It's caused by localized release in the body of histamine, a substance which causes certain blood vessels to expand abnormally. One patient said that during such attacks "the whole world is just a wave of pain," and that he tried to rip off his clothes and even broke banisters in his home.

One promising attack against this amounts, in effect, to fighting fire with fire. The treatment tries to "desensitize" the body to the effects of histamine by gradually building up resistance to it.

2. Certain headaches also are ascribed to allergies—such as sensitivity to certain kinds of food.

3. Migraine, the periodic "sick" headache associated with nausea, vomiting, spots before the eyes, and a family history of similar headaches.

4. "Tension headache," the headache of worry-warts, the people who never learned to relax. It's also the headache that sometimes affects people who aren't constitutionally fitted to cope with life's ordinary stresses; or that sometimes hits super-personalities who try to take on too big a job.

When they get tensed up, the blood vessels constrict. Later the blood vessels over-relax, and headache results. Sometimes a vacation will do as much good as any drug treatment.

5. Trifacial neuralgia, a lightning-like pain radiating from the facial regions. It can be caused in susceptible people by various stimuli.

POSTRAUMATIC HEADACHE

6. Postraumatic headache. One patient was an Army Air corps captain who had been shot down over Berlin. He parachuted down, but a civilian struck him on the head with a shovel. He suffered headaches for a year and a half. Under histamine injections at St. Mary's hospital, he was freed of pain.

Various substances other than histamine have proved useful in giving more or less permanent relief in some cases of some forms of headache. Some forms are helped only by surgical treatment.

Dr. Horton's report said practically all headaches are vascular in origin—originating from a disturbance in blood vessels within or outside the skull. The brain itself, he said, is insensitive to pain—and this is a comfort to most patients who often feel their headache may be due to a brain tumor.

Every individual case calls for thorough study, various tests and accurate history-taking, Dr. Horton said. He warned that shortcuts and "sure-cures" are usually a disappointment.

IT'S PICNIC TIME! It may be a basket lunch at a roadside park or merely toting table service and covered dish out in your own back yard, but nevertheless Mansfielders take advantage of all the nice days and evenings for informal eating.

A group of young Mansfield women were found frolicking at a roadside part near here during the past week. Food was served country style from a long table and eaten in any available nook or cranny. Some of the girls were graduated this past June from Mansfield Senior high school and others are still students.

Miss Katherine Nethero, 332 West Fifth street, Miss Almeretta Mastandrea, 368 Newman street, and Miss Gizella Knefely, Bowman street road, discovered an ideal spot where they could relax and "dig in" to the goodies. It looks like the girls are enjoying the occasion.

Finding the water a little chilly but still interested in wading is Miss Sarah Elmas, 212 Bowman street, shown lower left.

Just about to lose her balance is Miss Marilyn Harter, rear of 226 Lexington avenue, who looks gleeful about wading with confident Nancy Gutchall, 57 East Arch street. (Note—Marilyn later fell in.)

Miss Betty DeLaney, 494 Cline avenue (in the circle), prepared her own "Dagwood sandwich," complete with layers and layers of cheese and cold cuts, and was caught in the middle of a giant-sized mouthful.

Astowela Club Meeting Held At Westbrook

Westbrook Country club was the scene of the luncheon meeting held Friday for members of the Astowela Garden club. Twenty were in attendance and served at one long table centered with two bouquets of mixed summer flowers. Mrs. C. L. Willsey and Mrs. W. G. Black presided as hostesses.

Mrs. C. V. McConnell, horticulture chairman, spoke on delphiniums and Mrs. Emerson Weller, conservation chairman, talked of East Harbor Shore park on Lake Erie. Mrs. L. A. Ott, bird chairman, gave a short talk on "The Goldfinch."

"The World Is My Garden," written by Dr. David Fairchild, was reviewed by Mrs. R. L. Walker. She told of the beautiful tropical gardens which she visited in the south. These are classified as outstanding in the world and are spoken of in Dr. Fairchild's book.

The club will convene for a picnic at Middle park on Aug. 6 at 12:45 p. m. Mrs. Dean Rex and Miss Grace Wolcott will be hostesses at that time.

Annual Party To Be Held Thursday

The annual summer party for members of the Mansfield Federation of Women will be held Thursday at the Women's club. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock and bridge will be played during the afternoon. Mrs. Roy Webber will preside as hostess.

Reservations for the party must be made with Mrs. Carolyn Bushnell at the Women's club by tomorrow evening.

Mrs. LeRoy McGinty is chairman of the social committee for the federation: Mrs. O. G. Place, chairman of ticket sales for the lecture luncheons for the coming season, and Mrs. Louis Jisa, chairman of publicity for the luncheon-bridge parties.

Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Monday, July 26

Monday's astrological forecast shows a sudden upset which may strike forcefully at the very root of objectives and plans of more than passing significance. It is probable that a healthy and well-organized state of affairs, in which high ambitions seem well on a constructive way to cooperation with superiors or employers, may be undermined by rash, wild or erratic act or words. A rush of belligerent impulses or an eccentric attempt to "kick over the traces" by emotional impact or reckless words, could shatter and devastate cherished objectives. In personal affairs calm behavior may avert trouble and estrangements.

IF IT IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in the midst of havoc and devastation in which their own eccentric conduct, rash actions or intemperate speech, are responsible. This may squelch all hope of cooperation of those in influential places, who may be disposed to support original, ingenious or unusual propositions. Major issues could be uprooted by wrong techniques or rash gestures —offensive and exasperating.

A child born on this day, while having excellent prospects for success and constructive endeavors, may upset all such promises by erratic, tempestuous or singular words and deeds.

Just Ask Ann

That wonderful feeling of mid-summer has arrived. Everyone is beginning to look forward to the schools opening again for another year of work, play and fun with all the rest of the many students who'll start back. Hayrides will be in the planning, after football game dances, parties and other things that go together to make a school year fun and exciting. . . .

Here's a little tip I heard about putting up your hair. Even if you're all tied up, you can still be pretty and cute now while wearing curlers! You don't have to hide when your best beau comes acallin' unexpectedly. Just put your hair up in some of the new pastel ribbon curlers. If someone catches you in this rig, you'll look very fashionable indeed. These new pretty curlers make it possible to wear your hair up while on the beach or enjoying your dinner. . . .

Parties were in the making last week. Tuesday evening Marty Shiplet had a slumber party for the girls going to the lakes in August. Her guests were Barb Blahnik, Ann Shawber, Betty LaYacona, Susie Stoodt, Charlotte Hayward, Rita Richert, Gizella Knefely, and their chaperon, Ann Knapp. . . . Ellen Bromfield held one Wednesday at her home. It also was a slumber party for girls going to the lakes. Her guests were Shirley Jacobs, Peggy Brook, Jo Meihack, Phyllis Webber, Bev Brissell, Pat Ealy, Jane Fiddler, Pat Aldrich from Long Island and Nancy Pobst from Kalamazoo. This group will travel to Lake Erie on August 22.

Miss Charlotte Gray Honored Entertain Pleasant Valley Club

Miss Charlottle Gray, bride-elect of Richard W. McFarland, was feted Friday evening at a party given by Mrs. Carrie Ford and Miss Eleanor Ford, West Third street. Ten guests were in attendance and enjoyed an evening of contests. Prize winners were Miss Lois Traxler, Miss Marguerite Koerper and Mrs. J. W. Gray.

As each prize was presented, Miss Gray was given a gift from the hostess. At a late hour refreshments were served buffet style from a table centered with a summer bouquet.

Mrs. George Albrecht of Los Angeles, Calif., was the only out-of-town guest present.

Another recent party for the bride of Aug. 1 was given by Mrs. Howard Perathaner, 250 Saxton road. Mrs. Fred Harrold was the associate hostess. Twenty were present for the bridge party. The guests surprised Miss Gray with a shower of kitchen gifts and the hostesses gave her a gift of linen.

Pink and white appointments were used with the garden flowers to decorate the table when refreshments were served.

Miss Gray and Mr. McFarland will exchange wedding vows nevt Sunday at 2:30 o'clock at the First Methodist church. Open church will be observed.

Past Noble Grand's Club Convenes

The Past Noble Grand's club of Miriam Rebekah lodge enjoyed a picnic and social time Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Jenkins, Park avenue east road.

The members and guests were seated at one long table centered with a large bouquet of garden flowers. Large bouquets of glads decorated the home. The committee in charge was Mrs. Della Cochran and Mrs. H. E. Duffy.

The president, Mrs. Cochran, announced there would be a serving committee for Thursday, August 26. They are Mrs. G. V. Neff, Mrs. Merle Black and Mrs. Nora Bentley.

Officers for the last half of 1948 elected at the previous meeting are as follows: president, Mrs. Della Cochran; vice president, Mrs. Nora Bentley; chaplain, Miss Harriet Beck; secretary-treasurer, Miss Lois Addlesperger; and press correspondent, Mrs. C. V. Neff.

The next regular meeting will be August 26 in I.O.O.F. hall, featuring a 6 o'clock covered dish dinner to be followed by a business meeting and a social hour.

Cream puffs may be filled with vanilla ice cream and topped with butterscotch sauce for a party dessert.

BECKER-HRUDA NUPTIALS SOLEMNIZED SATURDAY

NUPTIAL vows were exchanged by Miss Mary June Becker, 130 Vennum avenue, and Robert Macquire Hruda, Westfield, N. J., Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock before a beautifully decorated altar at the First English Lutheran church. Rev. Olan W. Aughbaugh officiated for the formal open church double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Becker, 130 Vennum avenue, and Mr. Hruda's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Hruda, 509 Woodland avenue, Westfield, N. J.

Mrs. Clayson Bell presided at the organ for the program of nuptial music and Miss Beverly Jane Wentz was the vocal soloist.

Two beauty baskets of mixed flowers in the pastel shades, palms and ferns formed a colorful background which was illuminated by lighted seven branch candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Becker wore a hand made dress, fashioned by Miss Doris Boardman. It was of white slipper satin with French lace yoke and sleeves. The high neckline and sleeves were edged with a banding of satin. The gown was made with a long bodice and full skirt. The altar train, made separate from the skirt, formed a peplum in the front. Her imported illusion veil was held in place by a coronet headpiece of satin and lace.

She carried a white sorority Bible topped with gardenias which were tied with satin streamers, to which were pinned the couple's sorority and fraternity pins.

Miss Lucy Mandry of Youngstown, sorority sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was attired in a pale blue taffeta frock, styled with long fitted bodice and full skirt. The off-the-shoulder effect was formed by a scalloped top and half sleeves. She wore a ruffled headpiece and mitts of matching material.

Miss Robin Hruda, sister of the bridegroom, of Westfield, N. J., Miss Glenna Shields, of Granville, Miss Rhea Ohl and Miss Evelyn Boehmler, both of Mansfield, were bridesmaids, wearing gowns made similar to that of the maid of honor's. Both Miss Hruda and Miss Shields wore yellow and Miss Ohl and Miss Boehmler wore pink.

Miss Patricia King, foster sister of the bride, wore pale green, as she served as junior bridesmaid.

The attendants carried large bows of ribbon, with astors in and around them.

Mrs. Becker chose a powder blue frock with black accessories and a corsage of gardenias for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Hruda wore an aqua dress with white accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Serving as best man was Frederick Winterkamp of Youngstown, fraternity brother of the bridegroom.

Ushers were Allen Hruda of Westfield, N. J., brother of the bridegroom, Edward Lopina of Columbus, a fraternity brother, Kenneth Swallow of Westfield, N. J., close friend of the bridegroom, Edward Becker of New York City, brother of the bride, and Richard Fisher of Mansfield.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Becker home for 175 guests. The large serving table was centered with a five tiered wedding cake, decorated with pink roses. Tall white tapers in silver candelabra, red and buff roses, sorority flowers, were placed on either side of the cake.

Following a honeymoon trip to the Atlantic, the couple will reside in Westfield, N. J., until fall, when they will resume their studies at Ohio State university in Columbus. For traveling the bride left in an aqua two piece dress with white accessories.

The bride was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and is a junior at Ohio State university. She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. Mr. Hruda is a senior at Ohio State and was graduated from Westfield Senior high school. He served 18 months in the navy. He is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, scholastic honorary fraternity, and Phi Kappa Sigma, social fraternity.

Until fall Mr. Hruda is employed at the Western Electric at Kearny, N. J.

Guests were in attendance from Westfield, N. J., New York City, Pittsburgh, Pa., Steubenville, Columbus, Akron, Celina, Rocky River, Mason, and Point Pleasant, W. Va.

Miss Phyllis H. Ehrhart And Blair Musselman Wed

Couple Exchange Vows at Double Ring Rites Sunday at Peace Lutheran Church In Galion.

GALION — A traditional gown of white bridal satin styled with a square neckline and trimmed with numerous buttons on the back and closing the long point sleeves, was chosen for the wedding of Miss Phyllis H. Ehrhart and Blair Musselman. The full skirt of the bridal gown fell into a long train. The finger-tip veil was attached to a sweetheart headpiece of seed pearls edged in Chantilly lace and orange blossoms. A pink and white rose corsage showered with ribbons was fastened to the white Bible which she carried. She wore three strands of pearls, the gift from the groom.

Miss Ehrhart and Mr. Musselman exchanged wedding vows before the altar of Peace Lutheran church July 18 at 3 o'clock. The Rev. Philip E. Auer, who read the double ring ceremony, was met at the altar by the bride, escorted down the white walk and given in marriage by her father. The altar was decorated with four seven-branch candelabra and the altar candles together with beauty baskets of pink and white gladioli, palms and ferns. White large satin bows marked the pews. The altar boys lighting the candles were Edwin Smith and Harvey Mulberg.

Miss Ehrhart is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ehrhart, 336½ North Sandusky avenue, Bucyrus, and George Blair Musselman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron B. Musselman, 100 Mansfield avenue, Galion, Ohio.

Mrs Herbert Jackson, jr, of Crestline, a cousin of the groom, was the vocalist, and Mrs. Robert McDonald, his aunt, was the organist, for the musical prelude.

Miss Barbara Ehrhart, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and wore an orchid organdy dress styled with fitted bodice with square neck, and full skirt with a bustle back She carried a colonial bouquet of peach colored carnations. The bridesmaids, Miss Beverly Finical and Miss Virginia Stevens, wore dresses of dotted swiss styled with square necks and a ruffle at the bottom of the full skirts. Miss Finical was in aqua and carried a colonial bouquet of orchid flowers Miss Stevens in yellow, had a colonial bouquet of yellow All of the attendants wore picture hats and sashes with bows and long ends which matched their gowns They also wore dainty lace mitts which matched their gowns. Gay Lorraine Casey, in a dress of yellow dotted swiss with matching hat and basket, carried pink rose petals. Johnny Ehrhart, brother of the bride, carried the rings on a white satin lace edged pillow.

Byron Musselman, twin brother of the groom, was the best man. The ushers were John and Ray Ehrhart, cousins of the bride from Osborn, and Richard Reid and Herbert Eichhorn, brother-in-law of the groom.

A reception was held for invited guests at the American Legion hall. The table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake decorated in pink and white. Mrs Fred Essex was in charge. During the reception piano selections were played by Jean Stebbins.

For traveling on a honeymoon, the bride wore a brown two piece dress with white and gold accessories and the corsage of roses from her Bible. Upon their return they will reside at 602½ South Union street, Galion.

Two Marriages Solemnized In Churches In Bucyrus Recently

BUCYRUS — White nylon parachute cloth fashioned the wedding gown of Miss Nellie Rowles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Rowles, for her marriage Sunday afternoon to Clifford Brewer, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Brewer. The vows were said in Bucyrus First Methodist church before members of the immediate families.

Material for the wedding dress was brought home from Japan by the bridegroom, a former paratrooper.

The couple are honeymooning at Niagara Falls and Canada and upon their return they will live in Tiro.

MISS WIDMAN WED

A rose gabardine two piece suit was worn by Miss Carmen Widman, daughter of Mrs. Flossie Widman Becker for her marriage Saturday to Joseph Williams of Bucyrus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams of Washington C. H. The nuptials were solemnized in St. John Evangelical reformed church at 8 p. m. with the Rev. H. A. Blum officiating.

The newly weds will live in Bucyrus where Mr. Williams follows the occupation of carpenter.

WILL MARRY AUG. 28

The approaching marriage, Aug. 28 of Miss Joy Fern Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Schmidt of Upper Arlington and Robert J. Geiger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Judson D. Geiger of Bucyrus, is on the mid-summer nuptial calendar.

The vows will be exchanged in the Community church at Columbus and a reception at the Faculty club will follow.

The bride will be graduated in the spring from Ohio State university. Mr. Geiger a recent graduate in engineering at Carnegie Institute at Pittsburgh, has accepted a position with the Borg-Warner company in Chicago.

Britons Face Future With More Hope

Increased Prosperity, U. S. Aid Heartening

LONDON — (AP) — Increasing British prosperity, propped by United States financial crutches, heartens Britain's socialists celebrating the end of their third year in full power.

The government, more confident of its probable fate before the voters, is determined to carry on its slightly lagging schedule of public ownership projects, and already its platform for elections tentatively set for May, 1950.

The labor cabinet which took over the management of Britain's affairs on July 27, 1945, has had tough sledding.

Britain lives by international trade. The trading accounts were totting up in the red before the war. Lost markets, sold investments, and war's wear and tear on an already declining industrial machine left a legacy of myriad basic troubles.

There's improvement all along the line noticeable now, but problems are still present.

The biggest is the trading deficit, still running on at the rate of more than one billion dollars a year. That's the hole that British workers, helped by American food and machinery, must plug in the next four years.

British production is now 11 per cent higher than it has even been and 30 per cent above the 1946 level.

EXPORTS STILL SHORT

Despite rising production, Britain has been trapped by prices for food and raw materials that have climbed faster than the sales prices of British exports.

Britain's leaders know they must raise exports another 50 per cent in the face of increasing buyer resistance. The price of failure to modernize industry and raise its export output is hardship and perhaps economic collapse.

Both Sir Stafford Cripps, the nation's economic chieftain, and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin have warned that American aid will not allow any sudden betterment of Briton's way of living.

One sobering thought to them is that Congress will have to approve the money for American aid every year.

The danger of runaway inflation seems to be gone. Retail sales are running at high levels, but the people are having to dig into the family sock to keep buying.

They have cashed a net of more than 36,000,000 pounds ($20,000,000) worth of postoffice savings certificates since Sir Stafford brought in his "disinflationary" budget last April. Main feature of that budget was a sharp increase in taxes on unearned incomes and considerable lowering of taxes for the lower and middle classes.

MIDDLE CLASS SQUEEZE

The middle class voters held the balance of power at the polls, and labor party politicians have increased the ardor of their courtship of these votes noticeably in the last several months.

The lower classes, especially the workmen whose average earnings are only about five pounds ($20) a week, are probably better off than they ever were before the war. The middle classes have been feeling the squeeze of fixed incomes and rising prices.

Now things look a bit better. Prices are coming down for some things. Prices controls have held the line with only small upward slips. One reason for that is rising food subsidies, which now amount to 470,000,000 pounds ($1,880,000,000) a year.

Housing is much improved. In every town and city from London to Scotland, the train traveler can see housing projects nearing completion.

Industrial production in general is reaching record peaks. Automobiles roll off production lines faster than ever, although car making here has not reached anything like Detroit's speed and efficiency.

Steel flows from mills at more than 15,000,000 tons a year, an all-time high. Talk of "bottlenecks" and "priorities" is seldom heard now.

Britain's slowly but steadily increasing staff of coal miners is hitting its target. After six months of this calendar year, they were a bit ahead of schedule on their goal to dig 211,000,000 long tons this year. Coming holidays will trim production.

Car Colors Show Type

BALTIMORE — (AP) — The color you choose for your car gives an inkling of your character, a nationwide survey made by three automobile associations purports to show. That is, if you're lucky enough to be able to decide what color car you want.

According to the color poll, "intellectual people prefer blue; athletes, red; egotists, yellow, and extroverts, orange."

The poll was conducted by members of the Used Car Dealers association, the Automobile Manufacturers association and the National Automobile Dealers association.

The survey also shows that color preferences vary by regions. In the southwest, vivid colors are preferred. On the Pacific coast, light pastel tints are chosen. In New England, subdued blues, maroons, greens and grays are favorites.

Gloomy Attic Houses Mansfield Museum

By NORMAN DRESSER
N-J Sunday Editor

In a dutsy, gloomy attic of the Memorial building on Park avenue west is one of the finest historical collections in north-central Ohio.

Not one Mansfielder in ten knows of its existance, or has visited the third-floor museum.

Visitors to the museum more likely than not will be barred by a steel lattice on the stairway. The museum officially is opened on Saturday afternoons. But "it's usually closed anyway," Pat O'Conner, Memorial building custodian, said yesterday.

It's a fine museum," O'Conner said. "Been here a long time, it has, but very few people—even Richland county natives—know of its existence."

"And a lot of people come up here on week days to ask admittance to the museum, but I can't let them in because we're not supposed to admit the public except from 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Saturdays."

Dusty and unkept, the museum has a woebegone appearance of neglect. The collection fills the entire third floor of Memorial building and in it are crammed thousands of items with historical significance or of interest to the general public.

Among the objects on exhibit are the first stove in Richland county, giant mastodon jaws and teeth, a rare and valuable collection of swords from the Philippines, and many unusual stuffed animals.

MEDALS ON DISPLAY

One of the museum's most prized possessions is a collection of American bronze medals made by John Sherman, Mansfield's most famous son. The collection was donated by Mrs. Mary Sherman McCallum, daughter of the famed senator.

An unusual display is "Quack Dinner," consisting of three stuffed ducks and a rooster wearing doll clothing and sitting in a miniature dining room at a table laid with tiny dishes and silverware.

A large part of the collections was donated by Edward Wilkinson and Arthur L. Princehorn, both of whom were prominent in the founding of the museum.

H. L. Princehorn, 163 Ludwig avenue, brother of Arthur, recalled that Wilkinson was one of the organizers of the museum and played a leading role during the museum's first years.

"Wilkinson had a passion for collecting and his hobby was the museum," he said. He was custodian and practically lived there. My brother, who was a native of Mansfield but who lived in Oberlin for many years, shared Wilkinson's interest in collecting and gave the museum most of his collections."

When I was in high school here, we used to go down to the museum most every Saturday night to see the collections," he said. "I think it's a shame that it's not open more nowadays."

The museum was founded about 1890 and was popular for many years. During recent years, lack of funds has forced custodians to keep it closed most of the time.

Public interest has steadily decreased, perhaps largely because more and more people are not aware of its existence.

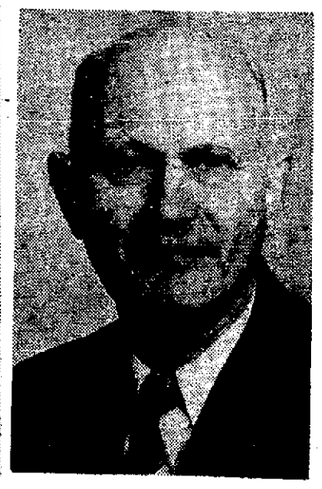
Mansfield Personalities During Past Week

GEORGE J. ALLARDING

Acting in the absence of Reformatory Superintendent Arthus L. Glattke, George J. Allarding, assistant superintendent of the Mansfield institution, last week shouldered the prison's responsibilities when the news of the tragic triple murder of John E. Niebel, farm superintendent, his wife and daughter, shocked the city. . . The event was Allarding's first acting superintendency in a crisis and the most infamous crime committed in Mansfield in memory. . . . Assistant superintendent since May, 1947, he was a former teacher at the institution, starting in 1932. . . . Graduate of Ashland college. . . . Taught school and coached at Rittman high school before coming here. . . . Member of the Masonic lodge. . . . Married and lives at the reformatory.

MISS RUTH DUNHAM

Announcement of the election of Miss Ruth Dunham as national secretary of Theta Upsilon national college sorority was made last week . . . The election, which brought Miss Dunham the honor of being one of the few Mansfield women to hold national office in a college sorority, was made recently at the sorority convention at Estes Park, Colo. . . . Has been active in the sorority work since graduation from Northwestern university . . . Also is one of the state officers of the Ohio Classical association for which she has written numerous articles on Latin for publication . . . Instructor in Latin at Senior high school since 1934 . . . Has law degree from Cleveland Law school . . . Resides at 57½ Bartley avenue.



C. W. HANDLEY

Announcing last week that Mansfield's labor supply rose 50 per cent during June, hitting the highest point of the year, was C. W. Handley, manager of the Ohio Employment Service office. . . . However, Handley said it was a normal increase owing to the influx of high school and college students into the summer labor field. . . . Head of the employment service for the past seven years, Handley is a former superintendent of Lucas schools, where he held the position for 16 years before coming to Mansfield. . . . Schooling includes Ohio State university, Columbia and Ohio university at Athens. . . . Member of the First Methodist church, American Legion and Masonic lodge. . . . Married, has three children and resides at 543 Park avenue west.

GERALD G. CORON

Heading the Red Cross swimming courses which have already given nearly 600 Mansfield children a chance to learn to swim, Gerald G. Coron, first aid and water safety director of the chapter, announced last week that graduation for the young swimmers will be held this week . . Also announced that new classes will be started at Liberty park pool on Aug. 10 . . . Is hopeful of including a class for two-to-four-year-olds in order that they may overcome any fear of the water . . . A veteran of World War II, Coron came to the Richland county Red Cross chapter in February of this year . . . Former city recreation department worker in Canton . . . Attended Ohio State university.

GEORGE W. REECE

Conferring last week with specialists from the Ohio Division of Social Administration on conditions at the Richland County Children's home were George W. Reece, acting superintendent of the home, and his wife, Mrs. Laura Reece, acting matron. . . . Richland county commissioners and the county Child Welfare Board have suggested that a new site be established for the home. . . . Appointed last fall as acting superintendent, Reece accepted the job with a rich background of "Y" and Boy Scout work. . . . Was graduated from Michigan State college in business administration. . . . Member of the First Methodist church. . . . Fond of yachting which he used to do on Lake Michigan. . . . Father of four children.

FLOYD F. DENT

That broad smile Floyd F. Dent's wearing these days is for the $60,000 Boy Scout camp project which finally started last week after more than four years of planning. . . . Dent, who is executive of the Johnny Appleseed area, saw the first shovelful of dirt turned over at Camp Avery Hand jr. . . . The building program includes an outdoor swimming pool and a Memorial lodge in memory of 6,500 former area scouts who served during World War II. . . . Completion of the project is expected in June, 1949. . . . Always interested in youth work, was former physical education director at the YMCA. . . . Attended Notre Dame university. . . . Served in the Air Corps in World War I. . . . Married, father of six children and resides at 238 Rae avenue.

Dog's Barks Save Lives of Eleven

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — Eleven Youngstown residents owe their lives today to a little mongrel dog.

The dog's frantic barking aroused Mrs. Ed Brady, her eight children, Lincoln Duck and his 12-year-old son and enabled them to escape fire raging through their two-story dwelling yesterday.

14th Modern Olympics Open Thursday In London

Cleveland Indians Skid to Third Place

Biggest Field Is Entered

By TED SMITS

LONDON — (AP) — Relays of runners sped the eternal flame of sportsmanship toward London today to fire the torch opening the 14th modern Olympic games next Thursday.

Then 5,000 athletes from 61 nations will start competitions in 17 sports continuing until the closing ceremony Aug. 14.

Despite the distress of the post-war world, this is the greatest number ever. The Berlin games of 1936, last to be held, drew 3,904 from 42 lands.

The target of almost all competitors is to excell the highly-equipped and highly-trained Americans.

In nearly every event they figure that one of the boys or girls wearing the red, white and blue U. S. Olympic shield is the one to beat.

CONVERTED DOG TRACK

The newest chapter in the sports drama that began in the hazy early history of Greece in 776 B. C. will be played in and around Wembley stadium, a West London dog track austerely converted into the shrine of international sport.

King George VI, one of the most sports minded monarchs ever to rule Britain, will say: "I proclaim open the Olympic games of 1948, celebrating the XIVth Olympiad of the modern era."

Then around the bright red running track of pulverized tile that encircles the emerald infield, a blond six-foot runner—chosen as "the perfect Englishman"—will race into the stadium to fire the Olympic torch with a flame borne by a long procession of runners from Mt. Olympus in Greece.

Today the torch was carried over the Alps of Switzerland toward France. A British warship will bear it across the channel.

The United States—its team of 341 athletes is second in size only to Britain's 374—is counting on the usual powerful showing in track and field, focal center of the games, and championships in swimming, crew, basketball, boxing, wrestling and other fields.

SHOULD WIN EIGHT

Dean Cromwell, U. S. head track coach, says "we have a great team and we are sure to win eight first places in track and field, maybe more."

Actually, America has contenders in 16 of the 24 track and field events. At Berlin, the Stars and Stripes went up on the central victory flagpole for an even dozen first places.

Here are the young American men from whose ranks Olympic track champions most probably will come:

Mel Patton of Southern California and Barney Ewell of Lancaster, Pa., sprints; Mal Whitfield of Ohio State, middle distances; Bill Porter of Northwestern, high hurdles; Roy Cochran of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, 400 meter hurdles; Willie Steele of San Diego State, broad jump; Vern McGrew of Rice Institute, high jump; Richmond Morcom of Durham, N. H., pole vault; Francis Delaney of the San Francisco Olympic Club, shot put; Fortune Gordien of Minnesota, discus; Bob Mathias of Tulare, Calif., decathlon, and Dr. Stephen Seymour of the Los Angeles AC, Javelin.

There is concern among some Americans over British weather, chilly and wet in sharp contrast to hot American summers. Cromwell thinks it helps his boys sleep and won't particularly mar the performances.

But swimming coach Bob Kiphuth says his team is being frozen, and can't get limbered up.

NEW SPORTS HERO

The Oyympic games have a way of presenting a new sports hero to the world. Paavo Nurmi came out of Finland in 1924 to win immortal fame. Jesse Owens of the United States captured three individual events in 1936 and ran on the winning relay team for a fourth gold medal.

No one has yet arisen with the heroic stamp of Nurmi and Owens. But at least seven fast men are trying for two championships and some are running on relay teams as well.

Stuff About Sale Of Tyger Ducats; Yarn, Cuff Stuff

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

FALSE RUMORS have been making the rounds in Mansfield that season tickets for Senior high's 1948 football games are about all gone. . . . Tis not so. . . . In fact, present figures reveal that slightly more than a third of the tickets are sold. . . . We were chatting with George Sherman, the Tyger ticket major domo, last night and he said that 2,800 Mansfielders have tickets. . . . That leaves approximately 5,000 season books still to be sold. . . . The season ducats go for seven bucks for the seven home contests. . . . Fall sale at the high school will not begin until the last two weeks in August. . . . However, Mansfield area grid fans can purchase tickets by mail. . . . Letters with checks or money orders can be sent to Sherman at Senior high. . . . He goes to his office twice a week for the express purpose of filling ticket requests. . . . He told us that all orders received so far have been filled. . . . Tickets for the nearly completed south stands have started to move. . . . One section, 40 to 50 yard lines, have been sold. . . . That means seats are still available from the 40 yard line down in the south and from each of the 20's down on the north. . . . One-half of the south stands is being saved for visiting teams. . . . Season ticket sale is sure to surpass the 1947 season—first in Arlin field. . . . The '48 sale has already caught up with last year's.

OUR FAVORITE Hank Greenberg story goes back to the early days of the late war. . . . The elongated Cleveland Indians' vice-president had left the Detroit Tigers for service and wound up at Fort Custer. . . . The Custer baseball team officials kept trying to get Hank to play for them, but the big slugger wasn't having any. . . . However, he relented one day when the Custer club had a game scheduled at Jackson state prison. . . . Hank hadn't held a bat from May to August; he didn't even have baseball togs. . . . At the site of the game, the prison officials asked the Army team if they couldn't use Greenberg. . . . The switch was arranged and Hankus Pankus was decked out in a prison uniform. . . . The prison team won the game, 8 to 5. . . . All Greenberg did was hit two doubles, a single and a home run, driving in six tallies. . . . It was the only game he played in four years of service.

CUFF STUFF: Jack Walters and Paul "Stub" Winebrenner, the Farm Tools' one-two pitching punch, have each tossed four shutouts this season. . . . Winebrenner's fourth was a no-hit, no-run job against Marion Pollack Steel Friday. . . . Charley Stine, N-J sports staffer, got a strange request over the phone the other day. . . . Seems a former Senior high footballer who gained further grid fame at a leading midwest university wanted some information. . . . (We would use the fellow's name but want to save him embarrassment because he also did a bit of coaching). . . . The first query about the width of a football field was legitimate. . . . Most persons think a football field is 50 yards wide. . . . However, Charley informed him that the figure was 53 1/3 yards. . . . Then this former gridder asked the length of a field. . . . When Charley finished a bit of internal laughter, he choked out, "120 yards." . . . Any gridder from elementary school up should know that answer. . . . Ten former Ohio Staters are on the Cleveland Browns 1948 roster. . . . Many still have college eligibility. . . . The group includes: Lin Houston, Lou Groza, Bill Willis, Bob Gaudio, Dante Lavelli, Bob Brugge, Tom James, Tomy Adamle, Ollie Cline and Dean Sensanbaugher.

Dyer to Stay With Cards; Hannegan Is Not Panicky

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— Manager Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cardinals will not go the way of Ben Chapman and Mel Ott—at least not now.

"It's true that I'm disappointed we're not in front, but I'm not getting panicky," Bob Hannegan, president of the Redbirds declared yesterday.

"I plan no change now. I am perfectly satisfied with the job Eddie has been doing."

In discussing Dyer's status and that of the club which recently has dropped away from the top of the National league race, Hannegan continued:

"I repeat my statement of last December when I changed from politics to baseball. I'm new in this business, but I feel I'm learning the game pretty fast from all angles.

"I feel that I know enough about baseball to realize that a manager doesn't do all the pitching, batting, fielding and running for his ball club. We've lost a lot of games this season in which a base hit in the pinch would have won for us."

Asked about Dyer's chances to finish this season in charge of St. Louis, Hannegan repeated.

"I plan no changes, whatsoever. I won't talk about the future."

St. Louis Brings Up 'Poor' Record Hurler

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns announced yesterday that Pitcher Ralph Schwamb had been brought up from their Toledo farm club of the American association.

Schwamb has lost nine games with Toledo while winning only one, but his defeats include several tough luck decisions.

A's Splurge Puts Them Into First

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— The Philadelphia Athletics took over first place in the tight American league pennant race yesterday with an 8-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers as the Boston Red Sox dropped the Cleveland Indians into third place.

The Athletics victory gave them a margin of a half-game over the Red Sox. The Indians trailed the Sox by another half-game.

A five-run splurge in the eighth inning, featuring Pinch Hitter Carl Scheib's single with the bases loaded, carried the A's to their triumph.

SENT TO SHOWERS

Art Houtteman had the Athletics under control going into the eighth with a 6-3 margin. He was sent to the showers with two on and none out and one run in and Stubby Overmire took over.

Overmire walked Pete Suder to load the bases and then joined Houtteman in the showers. Hal Newhouser walked Mike Guerra to force in the fifth run. Scheib, batting for winning Pitcher Bob Savage, singled, scoring the deciding two runs.

Yankees Blow Chance, Split With Chicago

NEW YORK —(AP)— The New York Yankees lost a grand opportunity to gain on the American league leaders yesterday when they could do no better than gain an even break with the cellar-dwelling Chicago White Sox, losing the second game 8-4 in 10 innings, after winning the opener 6-2.

As a result, the Yanks found themselves in fourth place, a game and a half behind the third place Indians and two and a half in back of the new American league leaders, Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics.

The Yankees came from behind scoring two runs in the bottom of the ninth to tie the score at 4-4. The Sox, however, came roaring back to grab four runs off Joe Page, the third Yankee hurler, in the 10th, to clinch the game.

FURNISH RUNS

Singles by Mike Tresh, pinch hitter Taft Wright and Tony Lupien, together with a base on balls and two Yankee errors furnished the runs. Marino Pieretti, who was the victim of a six-run second inning assault in the opener, relieved Howard Judson in the ninth and was credited with the second game victory. Lupien's 10th inning single gave him five hits in six times at bat in the nightcap.

Frank Shea, who was getting his "do-or-die" chance in the opener, earned another shot at a regular starting berth by holding the Sox to six hits in the opener. It was his first victory since May 31.

Shea fanned Pat Seerey four times. Seerey, who walloped four home runs in a game last Sunday, fanned seven times in the twin bill, but got a single and his 12th home run off Allie Reynolds in the nightcap.

St. Louis Cards Nip Braves, 4-3

ST. LOUIS — (AP) — Terry Moore's long double, scoring Enos Slaughter from first base, gave the St. Louis Cardinals an exciting 10-inning victory over Bill Voiselle and the Boston Braves last night, 4 to 3, before 24,000 fans.

Slaughter had tied the score with a home run in the eighth.

4 Baseball Tilts Scheduled For Mansfield 9's Today

Four games grace the Mansfield baseball calendar today.

Probably the best game of the lot will be the contest at Blue Goose which will bring together the host Mansfield Grays and Marion VFW.

Jack Hammett, the Grays "stopper", will do his regular Sunday pitching for Manager Lefty Deeds crew. The game will get under way at 2:30 p. m. The Grays have won 13 and lost nine, winning the last four starts.

A double-header is scheduled at Tillman park with the Mansfield Hawks vying with T. and E. Tavern in the first game scheduled to begin at 1:30 p. m. Cliff Robinson will pitch for the Hawks while the T. and E. hurler has not been named.

Ohio Sport Center of the Hot Stove major league will meet the Mansfield Red Caps in the second contest.

MADISON AT GALION

Madison township's County Junior league team will play the first of five successive games today when it travels to Galion to meet the Galion American Legion Juniors.

Madison will be host to Lucas at Blue Goose diamond Monday, play Shelby American Legion at Shelby Tuesday and entertain Lexington Wednesday. Thursday, Madison invades Bellville.

Harold Snyder, Madison manager, is seeking games with teams in the area for the next month. Interested clubs may call him at 1963-1.

6 Softball Tilts Listed on Local Diamonds Today

Six softball games are scheduled on Mansfield diamonds this afternoon with the Ohio Sport Center team of the Independent league also playing a road contest.

The top attraction pits Komito's Clothes against Tappan Stove at the Tappan field at 1:30 p. m. Komito's leads the Independent circuit while the Stove aggregation is second in the Industrial wheel.

Mansfield Moose lodge entertains Carey and Bucyrus at Prospect park in a Moose traveling league twin bill.

Two Sandusky Cameo club teams battle Mansfield Park league outfits at North Larke beginning at 1:30. The Cameo juniors meet a Park 14-year-old all-star team while the Johns park team, league leaders, meet the Cameo all-stars.

Sport center plays Ashland Garber Printers at Johns park at 2:15 p. m. and travels to Marion Smitty's Grill tonight at 8 o'clock. Chuck Bauer will pitch the afternoon contest with Dale McKinley on the mound in the evening.

Wins Second

TOLEDO —(AP)— Indianapolis defeated Toledo, 8 to 1, last night to make it two straight over the seventh place Mud Hens. Lefty Chet Johnson scattered eight hits in setting his former mates down for his second victory as an Indian.

Giants Split With Chicago

CHICAGO — (AP) — Lefty Dave Koslo handcuffed the Chicago Cubs with five hits in pitching the New York Giants to a 3-0 second game shutout and a split in the double header yesterday.

A triple by Whitey Lockman, doubles by Sid Gordon and Wes Westrum and a Cub error produced all the Giants' runs in the fourth inning. The Cubs, behind the eight-hit pitching of Doyle Lade, had won the opener 3-1.

Cleveland Browns Go Into Camp

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Coach Paul Brown faces the task of finding replacements at three positions as the Cleveland Browns open training drills for the 1948 season at Bowling Green, O., Monday morning.

The Browns, starting their third season in the all America conference, will have 47 players in camp, including 25 members of the team that gave Cleveland its second straight AAC title last year.

At center, Brown must come up with someone to replace Mike Scarry, who accepted the head coaching job at Western Reserve university. Scarry was a bulwark on defense the past two years.

Frank Gatski, regular offensive center most of last year, Mel Maceau, who has been a capable substitute for two years, and Capt. Lou Saban are the leading candidates for the job. Brown has indicated he will give Saban a thorough trial at the center spot.

BLANDIN GONE

Another member of last year's starting cast, left tackle Ernie Blandin, has been sent to Baltimore to strengthen the Colts. Lou (The Toe) Groza and Big Chet Adams are leading candidates for the vacancy, but newcomers Bill Smith, Ben Pucci and Forrest Grigg are considered good prospects. Grigg and Pucci came to the Browns from the Chicago Rockets in trades last winter.

The retirement of Don Greenwood to a coaching job and the shifting of Mickey Mayne to Baltimore leaves the right halfback spot wide open.

Bob Cowan is the only returning right half, but Brown has signed a number of talented and well-known backs. They include Bob Brugge and Dean Sensanbaugher of the 1947 Ohio State team; Tommy James, who played for Brown at Massillon high school and Ohio State; Dub Jones, who was obtained from Brooklyn in the Bob Chappuis Deal; Ara Parseghian of Miami university's Sun Bowl champions; Warren Lahr of Western Reserve; Vince Marotta of Mt. Union and Charley Heck of Ohio Wesleyan.

Return of Edgar Jones, Tom Colella and Bill Boedeker gives Brown a strong nucleus at left half.

SIX ALL-STARS

Six of the Browns — Quarterback Otto Graham, ends Mac Speedie and Dante Lavelli, tackle Lou Rymkus, guard Bill Willis and fullback Marion Motley—were chosen on the official all-conference team last year and all are back again.

Brown hopes to find someone to spell off Graham from three players—Cliff Lewis, who has been with the team two years, and rookies Paul Rickards of Pittsburgh and Stan Magdziak of William and Mary.

The Browns open their season at Cleveland stadium Friday night, Sept. 3, against the Los Angeles Dons. Prior to the opener, the Browns have exhibition games with Buffalo at Akron on Sunday, Aug. 22, and with Baltimore at Toledo on Friday night, Aug. 27.

Athletics Move Into Top Spot

By BILL KING

BOSTON — (AP — The rampaging Boston Red Sox caused an American league earthquake yesterday by twice coming from behind to sweep a double-header from the Cleveland Indians, 6-5 and 2-1, before 34,129.

The Indians, in first place since June 1, dropped into third as the Philadelphia Athletics took over the lead—by the slim margin of two percentage points atop the Red Sox, who now have won their last 11 starts.

While dropping their first twin bill of the season, the Indians had ample reason to place most of the blame on slugger Ted Williams.

WILLIAMS DOES IT

In the eighth inning of the opener, Williams singled in Dom DiMaggio with the "clincher." In the seventh session of the nightcap, Ted lashed a two-bagger off the left-field fence against starter Sam Zoldak to drive in DiMaggio, who had walked, with the tying run.

Bob Feller rushed out of the bull pen and managed to make Junior Stephens fly to left for the second out.

Then Feller threw eight consecutive balls to pass Bobby Doerr and Sam Mele. The Cleveland fireballer was replaced by Russ Christopher when he threw two wide ones to Bill Goodman with the bases loaded.

Christopher, making his second relief appearance of the day, was unable to find the plate and Williams was forced in with the winning run.

Until the seventh, thanks to three double plays, Zoldak had faced only 18 batters while giving up two hits and a base on balls.

GET TRIO IN FIRST

The Red Sox got the first game underway in decisive fashion by greeting Bob Lemon, out for his 14th win, with a three-run opening inning. But the Indians stormed back against Jack Kramer for four runs in the second, two of them as a result of Lemon's one-on homer into the right field stands.

Lemon set the stage for his downfall by passing Goodman to open Boston's side of the eighth, with Cleveland leading, 5-4. Then, with two out, DiMaggio, Bill Hitchcock and Williams bashed consecutive singles and Christopher came to the rescue after all of the damage was done.

The Red Sox and Indians will wind up their series with a single game today.

Columbus Wins

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Columbus won the opener of its American association series with Louisville yesterday, 2-1, as Rookie Harvey Haddix tossed a five-hit-11 strikeout game.

Favorites Fade In Fast Fields

OCEANPORT, N. J. — (AP) — Stymie discovered again yesterday that the last $100,000 is the hardest as Bayard Sharp's Tide Rips flashed to an easy victory in the $29,150 Monmouth park handicap.

The world's top money winning horse, the 7 to 10 favorite, could do no better than fourth, as he missed out on first place for the second straight Saturday.

Shortly after the race, Hirsch Jacobs, who trains Stymie, said the seven-year-old would be shipped immediately to Jack Skinner's farm at Middleburg, Va. Jacobs said he would await an examination of the gallant turf veteran before deciding if Stymie ever would race again.

Stymie had earned $909,835 up to yesterday afternoon. Fourth money was worth $1,500.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Arlington park, where racing reputations are born and buried, produced another startling upset in the $56,100 Arlington handicap yesterday.

Stud Poker, at odds of 16 to 1, romped home winner by two and a quarter lengths over Star Edward, with the Calumet farm's Fervent, a 6 to 5, favorite staggering back in third place in a nine horse field.

Fervent, winner of $77,775 in five rich triumphs this season, finished almost six lengths back of Stud Poker, which took the lead at the club-house turn in the mile and a quarter race and never relinquished it.

Joe Mayer Wins Ohio Moose Title

YOUNGSTOWN — Joe Mayer, Mansfield driving range professional, won his second state Moose golf championship here yesterday.

Mayer, who is always near the top in Ohio Moose competition, fired a 145 over the 36-hole route. He had previously won the championship in 1943 and finished second last season with a 146.

Ted Etzel and Ray Malaska were the only other Mansfield entrants to place among the leaders. They finished in a tie for fifth place.

Twenty-one Mansfield Moose golfers participated in the annual affair.

NORWALK — A Mansfield quartet shot its way into second place in the district Elks golf tournament here yesterday with a medal score of 296 strokes.

Final 18 holes of the competition will be played today.

Carl Wiseman and Bob Moorhead paced the foursome with sparkling 73's while Gene Zediker trailed with a 74. Vic Salter chipped in with a 76. Wiseman won the 1947 Westbrook country club title while the other three are former club champs.
